Regardless of the predictions of politicians and newspapers that corn would rot in the fields on account of a shortage of farm labor, most of the farmers in this vicinity will be able to enjoy their Thanksgiving turkey with the knowledge that their corn crop is all safe in the crib. The best crop in many years while farmers are entitled to credit for having produced a wonderful crop of corn it was through the cooperation of the one who controls the showers and sunshine that they were able to do so. Perfect weather day after day enabled the farmers to harvest the crop without cold fingers.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Rase attended an auto sale in St. Joe, Mo., Tuesday.

Russell Gorthy who works in Baltimore was home over the week end.
