Cass County Farm Bureau Notes

Copy furnished from Office of County Agent Waldo.

Increased Interest in Livestock Production

With corn picking fairly well completed many Cass County farmers are turning their attention to increased livestock production. A letter mailed to all farmers the past week from this office calling attention to the government's request for greater livestock production and giving individuals an opportunity to list brood sows, ewes and dairy cattle for sale or that they wish to buy is receiving excellent response. Most of the cards returned to date show farmers plan to increase the number of sows, keep more ewes and milk a few more cows. Farmers having a surplus of this breeding stock will sell it to neighbors rather than send it to market.

A list of all stock for sale as well as that wanted will be prepared and mailed to those requesting it.

Gas Rationing

Indications are that farmers will be able to get as much gasoline as is essential but no more than is actually necessary to carry out their program of increased production of farm products. It now appears that gas rationing will result in few, if any, hardships as many farmers at first thought. It will, however, call for careful planning of all driving done.

Farmers who feel that an error has been made in their application or find they need a bigger allotment are asked to write, not drive, to the County Rationing Board at Plattsmouth. Mr. Glen Boedeker, Chairman, from Murray says driving to the office is unnecessary use of tires and gasoline that we are trying to conserve. Too, there are so many applications on file that the committee handling them has little time for individual conferences and probably can't take care of all office callers promptly.

In cases of emergency individuals should consult their filling station operator.

Take Care of Washing Machine

No more washing machines will be made during the war, and repair parts will be very difficult to obtain, war production officials have stated. Therefore, it is especially important that the machines we now have be used and maintained properly. Home Demonstration Agent Jessie Baldwin states. These are her suggestions:

1. Know your washing machine. Study the manufacturer's directions to get the maximum service from your machine. Do not overload it and strain the motor or blow a fuse.
2. Keep the drains clear of lint. Keep the surfaces of the machine clean and dry when not in use.
3. Take special care of all rubber parts, and make sure that no oil gets on such parts. Drain the hose.
4. Keep moving parts properly oiled. Keep bolts and screws tight.

Support Hog Prices at $13.25

The Department of Agriculture has announced that the price of hogs will be supported at an average of $13.25 per hundred at Chicago. This price applies to good and choice butcher hogs, weighing 240 to 270 pounds and is to continue until December 30, 1944.

Circular on Vegetable Diseases

"Vegetable Diseases in Nebraska" E. C. 1801 published by the Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service, is available at the county extension office. The circular was written by Extension Plant Pathologist J. E. Livingston, and contains much information that should be of value to anyone making plans this winter for next year's garden.

The circular includes discussion of specified diseases found on certain vegetables and control measures such as sprays and seed treatments, and general control measures that each vegetable grower should practice every year in order to get maximum production.

Plow Gardens

Gardeners are urged to watch for the first opportunity to get their gardens plowed, if plowing has not already been done.

Extension Horticulturist Ernest Hoppert reminds that fall plowed ground is quickly and easily gotten ready for early spring planting of peas, radishes, onions, spinach and potatoes. The freezing and thawing of winter breaks up the clods and fluffs the soil so with a little raking or harrowing it is ready for planting. Usually there are a few days in late fall or during the winter when conditions are suitable for plowing.

Rabbit Repellent Available

Rabbit repellent tree paint prepared at the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service Laboratory, Pocatello, Idaho, will be available to Nebraska farmers through several cooperating agencies, according to word received this week by Extension Agent Waldo from Extension Entomologist O. S. Bare of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Non-Stock Association is making arrangements to stock this repellent and distribute it through agencies such as the county non-stock co-ops. Farmers who need the repellent should contact their local co-op or the state co-op at Lincoln.

Bare states that this paint has proved to be very good protection for trees and shrubs. It comes in gallon containers, each of which is enough for treatment of a few hundred to one thousand trees, depending on the size of the trees. If necessary arrangements can be made, the repellent re-packaged in pint and quart containers for those who need only small quantities.

In many places, prepared repellents may not be available, and the entomologist and Extension Forester Earl G. Maxwell recommend the use of dry limesulphur mixed with water to the consistency of thin paint and applied with a brush. Addition of one pound of cheap bone glue to each gallon of the lime-sulphur paint increases its effectiveness and lasting qualities.

Extension Circular 1519 deals fully with control of cottontails and jackrabbits. A copy can be obtained without charge at the County Extension Office.

Stars In Game

Robert Hayes, senior at Iowa State college at Ames, was one of the big reasons that the Cyclones downed their ancient rivals, Simpson college, the past week by a 42 to 30 margin. Hayes scored eleven points for his team and in the second half of the contest scored nine of these points in a scoring rally that Simpson was unable to check.

Farmer Conditions Viewed

Chicago, Dec. 9. (UP)—Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma today said the farmer was making no "unreasonable" demands from the government and unless the attitude of the administration changes, members in high places "are definitely on their way out."

Thomas speaking at the 24th Annual Meeting of the American Farm Board Federation said the farmers' problems today were due to the "failure of the administrative branch of the government to act under authority of the law already enacted by the Congress."

"Under present wartime conditions no one can really say that the demands," he said.

Thomas listed four things he believed should be demanded of the government by farmers, they were:

1. That agriculture be recognized as a war industry.
2. That farm owners and farm labor be deferred for military services.
3. That a new and definite parity formula be developed so farmers "may have a square deal with both labor and industry."
4. That farm prices be permitted to rise to full parity "and even higher if necessary to secure sufficient production to supply our war needs."

Bataan Hero Prisoner

Washington, Dec. 9. (UP) Bataan's one many army—Capt Arthur W. Wermuth of Chicago is a Japanese prisoner of war.

The war department disclosed that Wermuth, credited with the single handed killing of at least one hundred sixteen Japanese and capturing many more during the Philippine campaign, is in a Japanese prison camp. The disclosure ended six months of uncertainty over his fate. He had been reported missing since June 1st.

Presented Navy Cross

Aboard a Destroyer in a South Pacific Port. Dec. 7. (Delayed)—(UP) Admiral William F. Halsey, in behalf of President Roosevelt and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet, presented the navy cross for extraordinary heroism to Commander Wallace Frederick Peterson of Council Bluffs, Iowa today.

Discovers Rubber Substitute

Chicago, Dec. 9. (UP)—Because a kettle boiled over accidentally, Bauer and Black Dressing Manufacturing Company announced today that the nation has a new substitute for sponge rubber that can be produced from waste farm products and used in tanks, airplanes and other war equipment.

Two chemists in search of a substitute for rubber as an adhesive tape, combined a resin with an acid and intended to vulcanize it in a kettle with other chemicals. The contents foamed up out of control. They succeeded in controlling the foam and the new rubber substitute was the result, the company disclosed.

The new sponge rubber substitute, as yet unnamed, can be used to line tanks, pad airplane cockpits, pad helmets, fill seat cushions and make de-icers for airplane wings and mattresses for hospitals. After the war the product will be used for general civilian production replacing natural sponge rubber.

Opposes Silver Sale

Washington, Dec. 8. (UP)—Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada today continued a determined attempt to prevent Senate consideration of legislation to permit sale of Treasury-owned silver for war use at fifty cents an ounce.

McCarran has proposed a substitute for the original silver bill which would permit treasury silver to be sold at 71.11 cents an ounce. The standard price of non-monetary silver is $1.29, an ounce.

Speaking in a low voice, almost inaudible in the galleries, McCarran said he was prepared to "talk for a long time to keep the bill from coming up in this session."

Discuss Army Finance

Omaha, Dec. 9. (UP)—A group of army officers who spent seven billion dollars the last fiscal year are staging a three-day meeting here at which army finances will be discussed and thoroughly overhauled.

A spokesman, Col. H. F. Chrisman, Washington, explained the desire to spend money by saying the finance department believes the quicker the money can be spent, the sooner enough armaments will be produced to win the war, so that it will be a saving in the long run.

"We no longer have an economy of money," said Chrisman. "It's place has been taken by an economy of production."

Attending the conference are finance officers from every service command in the continental United States.
