Celebrate in Ireland

Dublin, March 17—(U. P.)—The Rising ushered in St. Patrick's day today with customary zeal.

The day began with the ceremony of Blessing the Shamrock. The green was distributed this morning to all soldiers, but the army was missing from the traditional St. Patrick's Day parade.

President Eamon de Valera led a procession to the Dublin Cathedral to attend a celebration of High Mass.

The military parade, formerly the feature of the St. Patrick's Day procession, was lacking as Eire's small but well-equipped army remained on the alert in a neutral nation surrounded by war.

The Shamrock was worn by everyone, but Eire probably is the only country in the world where Irishmen will not observe the time-honored and highly popular custom of publicly "drowning the Shamrock" in Irish whiskey.

All saloons and bars are closed and Irish hopes that they might be reopened for the day were dashed when a new liquor bill was held up in the senate.

North Ireland, where so much restrictions prevail, went all out, with United States soldiers, sailors and marines sporting the Shamrock and joining the traditional festivities.

Private Goldberg, Knudsen and Borowsky shook up their ancestors to produce a Murray, an O'Hara, or a Magillicuddy from their family trees to impress the natives and find an excuse for the wearing of the green.

Praises American Airmen

Washington, March 17. (UP)—Lt. General George C. Kenney, commander of allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, said at the White House today that the quality of Japanese pilots had "unquestionably deteriorated" to the point where

"their highly skilled first string team is gone."

Kenney made his statement about the deterioration of Japanese pilots in response to reporter's questions on whether any change had been noticed by his airmen who recently destroyed a 22-ship enemy convoy north of Australia.

By contrast Kenney said "our first team is just beginning to get in line!"

Recovered Social Security

Washington, March 18. (U. P.)—The Social Security Board recommends in its annual report to Congress expansion of the Social Security program as an anti-inflation measure.

The Board said that expansion is necessary also to provide present and future production for the people to meet critical present war unemployment problems and to give the wage earner his "full money's worth."
