Cedar Hill Church Dedicated

Details surrounding the recent completion of the Cedar Hill church building, northwest of Greenwood, remind the devout of the forty and six years spent in the building of the temple at Jerusalem. Others might have called to mind the passage that a thousand years is but a day to the Lord. For the building has been 13 years in construction, having been begun in 1930. At that time funds were scant, but the members needed a church and decided to adopt a pay-as-you-go plan.

Sunday the church was dedicated with a special ceremony. It is a community church under the care of the Methodist conference. In the dedication it was described as a temporal home to all Christians, regardless of denomination.

Emil Bornemeier, who lives southeast of Elmwood, was here Tuesday to take care of business and visit friends.

An out-door stove, which really does cook, and on which weenies were roasted and buns toasted, a picnic table loaded with good things to eat, an out-door living room, with easy chairs made a delightful setting for a good time. The clouds withheld their rain until midnight, so it was a case of getting in a picnic between showers, but Mr. Fitzpatrick has all that part of his yard gravelled, so there was no mud and the heat from the huge stove was part of the enjoyment.
