Dies Committee Reject Offer By Relocation Authority

Do Not Desire Attempt to Censor Any of the Testimony on Jap Camp Life.

Los Angeles, June 17—(UP)—A Dies subcommittee investigating Japanese war relocation centers today rejected as a censorship attempt an offer by the war relocation authority to participate in the hearings.

"We do not want any representative of this agency to come here and attempt to censor any testimony developed in this hearing," chairman John M. Costello said.

Dillon S. Myer, war head, had suggested that R. B. Cozzens, assistant field director from San Francisco, come to Los Angeles to see that factual statements of the proceedings were sent out.

"I have declined Mr. Myer's offer," Costello said. "I have read most of the newspaper accounts of these hearings and they have been very factual; in fact I think the press has made every effort to give a fair and accurate account of the testimony."

Myer had complained that stories the Presbyterian church at Murray, has been very seriously ill at his home for the greater part of last week. He has been bedfast and unable to conduct the usual services. He is being given the very best of treatment however.

G. E. Brubachern local merchant, with his daughter, Beverly, was in Omaha the past week to spend a few hours attending to some business for the store.

Mrs. W. L. Seybolt, who has been in poor health for some time, is now reported as being somewhat better and greatly encouraging the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sporer and daughters entertained at dinner Sunday and has as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kiser as well as William Sporer.

Harry McCulloch has been very busy building brooder houses for the residents of this section of Cass county.

The nation's most dangerous Japanese, according to a Los Angeles police report, was released from the Poston, Ariz., relocation center without ever having been confined there and now is working in a mid-west boys camp, mayor Fletcher Bowron testified.

The Japanese, Kiyoshi Okura, former member of the Los Angeles civil service commission, was the subject of a special report by captain of detectives Vernon Rasmusson.

Okura, the mayor said, belonged to numerous Japanese organizations, and that although he professed to be a Presbyterian, was married in a Shinto Temple. A year before Pearl Harbor he applied for expatriation.

After Pearl Harbor, a Japanese exchange list gave Okura a high priority. Despite this, the mayor said, Okura never was inside a relocation center, and spent only a brief time in temporary quarters at Santa Anita before going to the mid-west.

Another Japanese released under questionable circumstances, Mayor Bowron said, was Miya S. Kikuchi, taken from Manzanar relocation center for a lecture tour under auspices of the International YMCA. "She is a very clever woman," he said, "and during the four years she spent in Japan, was in constant contact with influential Japanese government officials. I was told also that she associated with prominent Germans there."

"I am informed that on this national tour she disseminated subtle Japanese propaganda."

Gold was first mined in what is now Colorado in 1858.
