

Fate Of Smith-Connally Bill Is Due Saturday

Automatically Becomes a Law Unless Vetoed by the President Before Noon Saturday

Washington, June 24. (UP)—The Connally-Harness-Smith anti-strike bill will become law automatically at 12:01 A. M., Saturday unless President Roosevelt vetoes or signs it by then.

There was no indication from the White House which of the three alternatives Mr. Roosevelt would follow. Some of his most influential advisors are known to be urging him to veto the bill on the ground that it would in effect legalize strikes. Organized labor leaders also oppose it.

The bill would:

1. Authorize the government to seize war plants or mines where a labor dispute threatens to interrupt production.
2. Make it unlawful for anyone "to coerce, instigate, induce, conspire with or encourage" anyone else to strike or otherwise interrupt

Action in Riot Cases

Detroit, June 23. (UP)—Quick state and federal punitive action against instigators of Detroit's bloody race riot, was announced today as court stepped up sentencing of minor violators and authorities indicated more serious charges might include that of murder.

Only misdemeanants so far had appeared in municipal court but government officers disclosed that they are considering calling a special grand jury to investigate charges growing out of race rioting which took 29 lives and resulted in more than 1,300 arrests.

production in any plant so seized. Violators of this section would be subject to maximum penalties of a $5,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

3. Require a 30-day cooling-off period and secret ballot before strikes may be called in privately-operated plants and mines.
4. Give the War Labor board statutory powers, including the power to issue subpoenas.
5. Prohibit labor unions from contributing to political party campaign funds.

Italian Colonies And French Empire May Have Changes

Developments After the War of the African Dominions Loom Big in Post War Issues

London, June 24. (UP)—The capture of Italy's entire southern empire and the possibility that application of the Atlantic charter might bring sweeping changes in the French empire are focusing increasing attention on the question of Africa's post-war future.

There have been no announcements or suggestions from official sources regarding the fate of the Italian colonies because of the insistence of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill that no territorial questions shall be determined before the end of the war.

Meanwhile, the British admiralty, as well as British land and air forces, are utilizing and improving former Italian bases for use against Italy.

The war has demonstrated that the British bases of Gibraltar, Malta and Alexandria are insufficient under modern air conditions to guarantee transit along Britain's lifeline through Egypt to India, and the question of future trusteeship of such points as Tripoli, Benghazi and Derna is bound to be a major issue at the peace conference.

The same holds true regarding Bizerte and Tunis, where British Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, allied naval commander in the Mediterranean, is at present firmly in command. Pantelleria, the Italian Island midway between Tunisia and Sicily, also fall in this category and a realistic London newspaper letter writer has proposed that Britain should retain the island after the war and re-name it Churchill island.

All such bases might be placed under the control of a new world organization which would guarantee their use for the common benefit and keep them out of the hands of future aggressors.

But the British admiralty might also be expected to suggest that, since it already is well installed and fully capable of operating such bases in the common interest, it would be more efficient to permit the British to do the job.

Dakar, on the West Africa bulge, poses a similar problem. President Roosevelt is on record against even permitting Dakar to be employed again as a threat against the western hemisphere.

It is notable that neither Dakar nor Tunisia has been the scene of any French political agitation. Dakar still is run by French resident General Pierre Boisson, assisted by an American naval mission.

Both Britain and the United States are firmly against territorial aggrandizement. Both are equally firm against allowing the world to get into such shape as to make future aggressive threats possible.

Therefore, the peace conference is bound to face a decision as to whether to adopt an idealistic approach or to follow the practical precedents already in existence.

Word From Son

Ira Mumm, serving with a submarine chaser somewhere in the Pacific, writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mumm, that its certainly nice to get a letter from home. He states that he is well and in good spirits. So far letters from home have been arriving with clock-like regularity, he writes.

Nebraskan Killed

Rapid City, S. D., June 23. (UP)—Army officers have announced the names of nine soldiers killed in the crash of a four-motored bomber Sunday, near scenic, S. D.

Included among the victims is 2nd Lieut. Frederick Buckley, Jr., of Beatrice, Nebr.

A mule pack train required nine and one-half hours to reach the scene of the crash.

Weeping Water

Special Journal Correspondence

Mrs. George Towle left Tuesday morning for her home in Hollywood, Calif., after having spent several months here caring for her mother-in-law, Mrs. Frank Towle. She expects to return here again in the near future.

Robert Keckler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Keckler, also left Tuesday morning for California, to visit at Hollywood, and with his aunt, Mrs. Daisy B. Corwin, at Los Angeles.

Chris Elgaard received word of the death of a niece, Mrs. Darrell Ingram, at Dannebrog, Nebr., Sunday. Mrs. Knud Jensen was hostess, Tuesday, at the regular meeting of the No-Name club, at her home.

Danish Anniversary

The Danish people of our community enjoyed another of their good visits Sunday, when they gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Elgaard to help them to celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary. When we asked one of the guests who was present, if it was a surprise, her answer was that it was supposed to be, but that she thought that the host and hostess would have been surprised if they had not arrived, as the Danish people always remember wedding anniversaries. Everyone arrived with well filled baskets of food, from which a bountiful dinner was served at noon, and all enjoyed an afternoon of visiting. Others arrived for the evening visit. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Orville Kracht, of Omaha, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, of Alvo.

Attend Church Meeting

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Snow went to Aurora, last week to attend the state meeting of Christian churches. They remained until Tuesday morning, when they were called home by the illness of their daughter, Mrs. Rhy Tankersley, who had been taken to Bryan Memorial hospital, Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Tankersley was reported as being more comfortable. She had been suffering from terrible pains in her head, which were almost unbearable. This seems to be responding to treatment, and her many friends here are hoping for a speedy recovery.

Find Charred Bodies

Bishop, Calif., June 23. (UP)—A rescue party today found seven charred bodies in the wreckage of an army B-24 bomber which crashed against the granite crags of Carson Peak, Sunday. Forest Ranger Don Lewis reported the plane had crashed at 13,000 feet elevation and was so difficult to reach that the bodies probably would be taken out over the top of the mountain rather than attempt the descent from the scene of the wreck.

HOME CANNING

★ The Answer to America's Greatest Food Problem

FOUR MAIN CANNING METHODS APPROVED FOR NEBRASKA

PRESSURE COOKER

The pressure cooker is the safest method of home canning. By using pressure, the higher temperatures can be attained. That's why the pressure cooker method should be used for vegetables and other non-acid foods. It is the only method which provides the 240° temperature required to kill botulism. Your electric range is ideal for pressure cooker canning.

WATER BATH

This method is probably one of the most used methods but is suitable for fruits and tomatoes only. The jars are placed in a water bath container which is deep enough to permit boiling water to cover them. Be sure the jars are placed on a rack and not directly on the bottom of the container. Your electric range makes water bath canning easier.

OVEN OR ELECTRIC ROASTER

This method is suitable for fruits and tomatoes. Your oven or roaster must be thermostatically controlled, otherwise high temperatures may result in food boiling out or in breakage. The even, exact-controlled heat of your electric range makes oven canning simple and highly satisfactory for non-acid foods.

OPEN KETTLE

Safe for fruits and tomatoes only. Food is thoroughly precooked and packed in hot, sterile jars with hot, sterile rings and tops. This method is recommended only when other methods are not available. However, the economy and controlled heat of your electric range is highly beneficial in open kettle canning, as in other methods.

HOME canning is more than an economy measure this year... it's the patriotic duty of every American homemaker. Uncle Sam has set the goal for home canned foods at 5 billion jars for 1943. That's a big order and a big job for American housewives. But if you are one of the fortunate women who use an electric range, your canning will be much easier... no matter what method you use or what foods you can.

Use Your ELECTRIC RANGE for all Canning.
