Big Yield Wins For Local Farmer County Corn Crown

DeKalb Award Goes to Charles Warga of South of This City With 154.24 Bushels

DeKalb, Ill. (Special)—A crop of 154.24 bushels per acre won the corn growing championship of Cass county in the 1943 National DeKalb hybrid corn growing contest. It was learned this week Charles J. Warga of Plattsmouth is the corn grower who made this outstanding yield in this locality in competition in which over 10,000 farmers from 17 principal corn producing states participated, according to officials of this biggest corn yield competition.

Mr. Warga and several other farmers in this county certainly produced more than their share of the nation's record crop of more than 3,085,000,000 bushels of corn in the food front battle. The champ's yield is several times that of the estimated yield for the United States of 32.7 bushels.

The county winner's corn was grown from Hybrid No. 835, and his yield calculated from the best five acres on his farm. In recognition of his achievement the winner is being presented with an appropriate plaque by the DeKalb Agricultural Association.

Other big yields recorded were made by E. F. Kettelhut, Lancaster county, 129.86; Arnold E. Helm, Otoe county, 102.94.

Congress Warns Of Dismissal Of 300,000 Workers

Survey Made to Secure Needed Reduction in Government Employment and Operation

Washington, Nov. 22. (UP)—The Joint Congressional Economy committee, renewing its demand for immediate dismissal of 300,000 government workers, warned today it would promote legislation to achieve the reduction if its new demand went unheeded.

The group also recommended a survey of all agencies and departments to promote better utilization of manpower and suggested that the budget bureau make greater use of the practice of placing "ceilings" on the number of employees that may be hired by any one branch.

The committee, headed by Sen.

Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., made its first request for a 300,000 employee cut last spring but said the executive branch thus far effected only a "small" net reduction of 131,058. The report said latest figures showed 2,964,405 civilian employees on the government payroll—more than necessary for the successful and effective prosecution of the war, and said that 62.2 per cent were not in direct mechanical war production.

The report placed civilian employment of the government at an all-time peak of 3,095,463 in June, with a drop through September, when the 2,964,405 figure was reached. But the committee said it had been informed that various agencies are seeking 130,000 new employees thru civil service.

Simultaneously, the group expressed concern over what it called "an excessive number" of full-grade promotions in certain agencies. It said that between December, 1942, and May, 1943, 20.7 per cent of the entire classified service received at least one full-grade promotion. The eight "old line" departments, it said, the rate was 19 per cent, but in some war agencies was above 40 per cent.

The report recommended a more "uniform, equitable and economical between-grade promotion policy" for purposes of economy.

To bring about its proposed 300,000 employee cut, the committee suggested that the executive branch dismiss at least 150,000 clerks in the war department's clerical administrative and fiscal service; at least 100,000 throughout the federal service through more efficient management; 25,000 in agencies ordered liquidated by congress; and 15,000 agriculture employees engaged in what it termed "non-war", duplicating and overlapping activities.
