Chaplains Found In Unity Over War Service Field

Head of the Chaplains Department Visits Armed Forces in Many Parts of the World

Washington, Nov. 27. (UP)—Protestantism's greatest unity is found today among its army and navy chaplains, Dr. William Barrow Pugh of Philadelphia, chairman of the protestant general commission on chaplains, reported upon his return from a 91-day world-circling tour of war theaters.

Pugh, who served in France as a World War I chaplain and now is chief executive of the Presbyterian church in the U. S., traveled at presidential request as official representative overseas of American protestantism.

"We are still far from the unity the Catholic chaplains have," Pugh said. He will start soon on a nation-wide speaking tour to enlist a greater backing of the chaplains by the 31 protestant denominations represented in the commission which he heads.

Chaplains in this war are in the front lines, parachuting to earth with their troops, helping the litter bearers ministering to the wounded in the first aid tents and generally "living up to the spirit of the outfit to which they are attached," he reported. He acclaimed their devotion to duty.

Morale is a problem among soldiers at isolated stations, not in combat zones, Pugh said. "When a man is in action his morale is good," Pugh said. "Their chief concern is home."

"Strikes are one thing they can't understand. They don't stop to consider extenuating circumstances. They see red," Pugh said he sometimes wonders why strike news was sent abroad for armed service consumption.

"Upton people will be surprised at the new beauty of this business house when they call there."

Study Butter Report

Washington, Nov. 27. (UP)—The report of Sen. Hugh A. Butler, R., Neb., on the administration's "good neighbor" policy is being studied by the joint congressional economy committee, preparatory to an investigation, it was revealed today.

Joseph L. Borda, director of the committee headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., said that if the material is worth while the committee would investigate not only Nelson Rockefeller's office of coordinator of international affairs but other agencies involved.

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, in an apology to Latin American neighbors for Butler's "shocking slur," promised that official refutation of charges that the administration's Latin American policy perpetuates new world dictatorships and fosters wars to be forthcoming.

Men Want Varga Girl

Washington, Nov. 27. (UP)—The men in the fox holes rather than "well fed" Washington bureaucrats should decide whether the Varga girl is lascivious and obscene, the usually staid army and navy register said today in going all out for the Esquire magazine lovely.

The Register said there was little doubt about what the fox hole verdict would be, and backed up its argument with a letter from a navy chaplain defending the "cursiousness."

The Register cited a letter from a naval chaplain who recommended to satisfy our Seabees:

"1. Thirty day furlough in the United States.

2. A Varga girl to be printed in our Seabee paper here."

The Register quoted the chaplain stationed with a Seabee outfit on a lonely Pacific island as saying his men "would go all out for a Varga girl dedicated to them and drawn for them."

What would the Etiquette Book say?

"Finishing gravy with a breadcrust... picking up chicken bones to enjoy the last delicious morsel—these are merely expressions of good judgment in these times. Food has become a mighty weapon of war. As always, perfect etiquette is nothing more or less than good sense tempered with good taste."

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, author of "BOOK OF ETIQUETTE"

Why the time has come to take a new look at our FOOD in relation to the war. Everything from manners to menus is involved. And it's really up to you!

Maybe you think a dab of gravy and a fleck of chicken are mighty little things. But they are a part of our total food. They stand for the greatest single weapon in the war.

Putting it plainly: There is not enough food available in this country to satisfy all the wartime demands at home and abroad—in spite of food production records that have grown and grown for 6 consecutive years.

Every single crumb of food has become important. What you waste—someone wants!

Here's Food's Job

- Out of our total food supply, we must be sure there's enough to feed millions of our sons who are a long way from home. Many of the foods we like best are the foods our fighting men need most. Meat is one of them. And butter and fats. And milk products. And canned goods.
- A fighting man eats as much in 2 meals as a civilian eats in 3. But no one begrudges him his appetite. The vast stores of food which must be set aside for shipment to our armed forces would feed the entire nation for 10 whole days. But no one has been called upon to miss a single meal at home.
- There must be enough food to keep a busy nation well-nourished and fit. That is a big job today. Because people who are head-over-heels in war work have bigger appetites and more money to spend on food.

In fact most of the extra dollars that are being earned by millions of war workers are rushing into our food stores. That's because there are no automobiles, refrigerators and other everyday products to buy. Hence, control of prices to hold the cost of food within the reach of all.

Without rationing of the country's most popular foods—first come would be served all of available stocks. Long lines of people would be left waiting for foods that would be chronically sold out.

Here's YOUR Job!

- PRODUCE FOOD, where and when you can. Farmers are urged to meet farm goals. City families are urged to plan a bigger Victory Garden, to help out on a farm or in a food processing plant if possible.
- CONSERVE FOOD. Can and preserve food. Cut waste. Stretch your food supply by substituting plentiful for scarce foods. Balance your meals for good nutrition.
- SHARE FOOD. Put the war's food demands first. Share the supplies willingly with your armed forces, your Allies, your neighbors.
- PLAY SQUARE WITH FOOD. Accept no rationed foods without giving up ration stamps. Pay no more than top legal prices under any circumstances.

The food we now send on Lend-Lease amounts to only 10% of our total supply. It is an investment in Victory.

As Americans, we have become used to plenty. We now must learn to be careful of food. Every day we still waste almost as much food as we send to our fighting Allies.

Right now is the time to change that. Respect food. Make the most of every crumb. Do everything in your power to make FOOD FIGHT FOR FREEDOM!
