Cass County Farm Bureau Notes Copy furnished from Office of County Agent Waldo.

Grub Control Nearly every farmer in Cass county will treat his cattle for grubs during the next few days if response to demonstrations held the past week, is any indication of results that might be expected. About one-fourth of the farmers in the county have seen control demonstrations and many have already applied a one percent rotenone dust which is highly recommended for this purpose. The cows back is simply dusted with the material and the dust is worked down into the hair by running one's hand back and forth three or four times. Feeder cattle on the Parr Young farm were treated at the rate of over 400 head per hour at a demonstration last Friday. The materials mixed and ready to use costs about two cents per head.

Farm Short Course The farm short course scheduled for January 31st to February 5th is especially planned for women and girls. This short course is just one of a series being held at the College of Agriculture, Lincoln, for the purpose of giving help for greater production for new and when the peace comes. Poultry and gardening problems and possibilities will receive the entire attention with class periods from 5 a. m. until 4 to 5 p. m. in the afternoon. How about a weeks vacation from home responsibilities, but a vacation that is inexpensive, requires little transportation and is worthwhile and profitable as far as war food production is concerned. Farm and town women pursuing these activities should be equally interested. For further information inquire at the Farm Bureau Office.

Sheep Shearing Sheep can be sheared any time on Cass county farms even though some cold weather is no doubt in store for the next few weeks. Only sheep that are in good condition and have a warm shed with plenty of bedding should be sheared this early, however. Several Nebraska flock owners like to shear before lambing. The animals are much easier to care for and the job is out of the way ahead of the rush spring work. A course in the training of sheep shearers can be arranged for Cass county if there are enough interested according to W. W. Derrick, State Extension Animal Husbandryman. Those interested should inform their county agent immediately.

Lost Stretch Once wool fabric has shrunk, nothing will restore its original texture, warn textile specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In shrinkage the wool fibers draw together making the fabric hard, flat and matted, so the natural fluffiness and elasticity is lost. When the fabric is wet, it may often be pulled out to its original size, but no amount of pulling or pressing will bring back all its former lightness and stretchness. Any wool fabric is delicate, especially when wet, and needs gentle handling, a mild temperature and mild soap to keep from shrinking. Sudden changes of temperature in washing and drying are responsible for much shrinkage. The alkali in strong soap or hard water is also bad for wool. Some of the new soapless lathers now in the market in powder, chip or liquid form are especially good for washing wool because they contain no alkali and make suds without scum in hard water. Wash wool in thick lukewarm suds and rinse immediately in water of the same temperature. Never leave wool soaking in water. Dry at room temperature, never in a cold or hot place. In washing squeeze the fabric gently, but avoid rubbing, twisting or pulling. In pressing use a warm but never a hot iron.

Clarke-McNary Orders The number of Nebraska farmers who are planning to plant Clarke-McNary seedlings for farm woodlots and windbreaks nearly doubled during the last week. Extension Forester Earl G. Maxwell said today as he revealed that nearly 145 thousand Broadleaf seedlings and evergreen transplants have been ordered. Farmers in Cass county have ordered 1,900 seedlings. Trees are available in seventeen broadleaf and evergreen varieties. For more information see your county agent.

Nehawka By Journal Field Representative Fred Nelson, who delivers coal for the Farmers Elevator and for A. F. Sturm as well, was a visitor in Plattsmouth on last Monday afternoon to secure his ration book for gas. John Ford and family took a day off on last Sunday and visited in Nebraska City, also attended a show there.

Hollis Adkins Enlists Hollis Ezra Adkins, who has been making his home in Los Angeles for some time and employed on a defense job there, enlisted in the navy recently, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Adkins. Herbie Kuntz has just completed the building of a four-row stalk cutter which he expects to have on display long before the time for spring work.

Harvests Crop of Soy Beans Vance Balfour who like many other farmers had to let the harvesting of his soy bean crop be delayed until he completed the corn crop gathering, has now taken care of his crop of beans. He reports a good yield and fine quality.

George Pellard was marketing a nice lot of spotted "Pomah" Chinchogs at Nebraska City, taking down a load on last Monday. A letter from Earl Troop by relatives here tells of his being at Costa Rica where he is employed on defense work. He plans soon to change his employment for a job with a construction company, thus returning to his favored occupation, that of drag line operator.

Celebrated Mothers Birthday The daughters of Mrs. W. O. Troop observed the birthday of their mother on Sunday following her natal day by gathering at her home for a family dinner. Many gifts were received by Mrs. Troop. Those participating in this pleasant event were Mrs. Victor Wehrlein of Irvington, Mrs. Wm. Gorder and Mrs. Robert Bestor of Plattsmouth. A son George Troop of Murray also was present.

Passes Anniversary The birthday of George Troop, of near Murray, was this week and he received a fine gift in the shape of a farm team that was secured by the wife as a birthday gift for George. The horses were bought by Ed Leach at a sale.
