Flexibility In Assignments In Woman's Air Corps

After October 31st the Enlistments Will Be for General Assignment in the Corps

Based upon the Army's need for greater flexibility in assigning members of the Women's Army Corps to military installations where the need for their skills is most pressing, all enlistments will be for general assignment after October 31. Enlistments for specific camps, posts and stations, and job assignments of the recruit's own choice will be discontinued after this date.

Recruits may, however, continue to ask for and receive assignment to either the Army Air Forces, Army Ground Forces or the Army Service Forces under the general assignment plan. Upon completion of basic training, WACs will be assigned to military installations on the basis of existing military needs.

Recruiting for women possessing special qualifications and such as required for the Army Medical Department will continue. High officials of the Seventh Service Command have pointed out the fact that the urgent need for women to serve with the Medical Department will continue regardless of any immediate progress on the European front.

"While the news on all fronts may be optimistic, it must be remembered that many of our men are being returned on stretchers to Army hospitals where the patient understanding and the trained skills of women are needed to help return these men to a healthy normal life," the officials said.

This year there are three classes of tickets, the adult, the high school and the elementary grades.

Car-Truck Accident

Tuesday afternoon while Sheriff Joe Mrasek was returning from a wreck at the Union intersection of highways No. 34 and 75, he found himself with a second wreck on his hands.

A truck driven by Clifford Garrison, who was accompanied by J. C. Snavely of Union, was coming north and a mile north of the intersection a car driven by Earl Barclay, of Lincoln, also was coming north. The car driven by Mr. Barclay sought to pass the truck and in doing so the front of the car struck the side of the truck and was completely turned around and was facing south when it stopped. The car was badly damaged but fortunately no one suffered serious injury.

Need of Waves

Despite the favorable trends in the war, 40,000 WAVES are still urgently needed by the Women's Reserve of the Navy, states Lieutenant Commander G. E. Kincaun, Jr., Officer-in-Charge of the U. S. Navy Recruiting activities in Nebraska and South Dakota.

The WAVES have distinguished themselves by assuming billets in nearly every shore activity in this country, he declares, and with the Navy calling for additional manpower, despite the rapid strides that have been made in the European theater, more women are to be enlisted to keep every trained Navy man possible available for duty at advanced shore-bases and aboard ship.

Under the Navy's manpower setup, between 770,000 and 1,000,000 men per month, on the basis of present plans will be taken through Selective Service. This will continue until the end of the War. It is thought by the Navy department.

Nebraska Taxes

Tax collections last year, reported for all states by the federal Department of Commerce, gave Nebraska a per capita average of $24.13, lowest in the nation save for Kentucky whose total collections of $59,861,000 gave a per capita average of $23.48.

Nebraska collected $28,375,000 in all types of state taxes, including payroll taxes for unemployment compensation, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, Governor Griswold reported.

Governor Griswold said that for the previous year Nebraska was recorded with the lowest per capita tax of all states but added that a slight population decrease coupled with a sharp gain in unemployment payroll tax collections resulted in a small per capita gain for Nebraska. Kentucky's per capita average, meanwhile, remained virtually unchanged and thus placed that state in the low spot of the nation.

With unemployment payroll tax collections excluded, Nebraska actually collected less in operating revenues during the 1944 fiscal period than in 1943. Operating revenues collected in 1944 totaled $23,163,000, a drop of $201,000 from last year. Unemployment payroll taxes are earmarked for the sole use of the unemployment compensation program.

Wartime declines in gasoline and liquor revenues were offset to some degree in Nebraska by gains in fee and license collections and by the action of the last legislature which increased the state's "head tax" from $2 to $3 and the taxable age limit from 50 to 65 years, Governor Griswold said.

Pointing out that the average per capita tax collection for all states is $42.58—with Nebraska at $24.13—the governor called attention to the following averages of Nebraska's neighbors: Colorado $43.71; Iowa $33.42; Kansas $34.56; Minnesota $45.19; Missouri $29.91; South Dakota $29.34, and Wyoming $34.95.

This year, the state of Washington leads all others with a per capita average of $75.74. Other high rankers are: California $70.34; Wisconsin $55.67; Nevada $52.70, and Delaware $50.51.

While Nebraska's collections showed a gain of 2.3 per cent over the previous year, the average gain for the nation was 5.8 per cent. Of all states, Florida showed the greatest gain—an increase of 32.1 per cent, due primarily to the inauguration of a new cigaret tax and skyrocket gains of state tax collections on horse-race bets. The state revenue returns from Florida's principal track this year were six times greater than last.

OBITUARY

William R. Davis

William R. Davis, the son of Ruel Rose and Biddy Hobson Davis, a pioneer in Cass county, was born near Yadingville, North Carolina in November 1853, and passed away in Pasadena, California, September 14, 1944 after several months of lingering illness. Funeral services were conducted the 18th at Fullerton, California, and burial in a local cemetery.

In April, 1856 his father, William Rose Davis left North Carolina with his family in a covered wagon drawn by a yoke of oxen bound for Nebraska Territory and arrived in Cass county in August after five months of a weary, tiresome journey and located on a claim half mile east of Sassen, a store and stage station operated by W. D. Gage—two miles northeast of Nehawka. It was here he spent his boyhood days.

William Rose Davis was a school teacher in North Carolina and at the request of the community started a school in his log cabin and young William R. Davis became one of his pupils. Beneath a large oak tree in the Davis door-yard the first Sunday School in Cass county was organized with Judge Hughes acting superintendent and young Wm. R. Davis a member of his class.

William R. Davis was united in marriage with Miss Mary E. Harmon of Avoca and to this union the following children: Mrs. Chancy Orton and Roy Davis, Fullerton, Calif.; Mrs. Alice Gunn, San Francisco, and Mrs. Julia Walker, Long Beach, California, and deceased Mrs. Joice Lyman and Earl. The late Mrs. Julia Jameson of Mt. Pleasant precinct, a sister, and Wesley Davis and Stephen Davis were brothers of W. R. Davis and survived by his widow, Mrs. Davis in Fullerton, California.

Mr. Davis and family lived on their farm two miles north of Nehawka until 1910 when they moved to California near Fullerton where he engaged in the development of a fruit farm.

William R. Davis witnessed and experienced the first half-century development of Cass county, meeting hardships and dangers bravely, always the first to extend a hand to those needing help and may the memory of this type of frontiersman never die.

Twenty-five Years in Business

Some twenty-five years ago, a young world war veteran from Glenwood, Iowa, arrived in the city and started in the operation of a cleaning shop and tailoring establishment—yes, you were right, it was Fred Lugsch.

Fred is observing his twenty-fifth year in business in Plattsmouth and can feel well pleased with the progress that he has made in the past years, from the small plant that he established opposite the Journal to his present plant.

Mr. Lugsch now has one of the largest plants in this section of the state and all modern in every way to handle the large flow of business that comes each day to the plant.

Not only is there a great flow of commercial cleaning and repairing but Mr. Lugsch has opened a plant for handling the cleaning and renovating of football suits and helmets that has brought to him service from most of the high schools in this section of Iowa and Nebraska.

The many friends will join in wishing Mr. Lugsch many more years of success in his line of business and for even greater expansion.
