IN MEMORY
Of Eunice E. Kline
The shadow of her passing, took the glow from the day
Even Nature seemed saddened when we laid her away.
Our heartbeats grew heavy, our keen mourning complete,
But the Good Book reminds us, "Beyond the River we shall meet."
So weep not, dear loved ones, for repining forbear,
For Eunice, your darling, lying quietly there,
Her life work is ended, the glorious guerdon won
"Enter into thine heritage, the race was well run."
