Littell Makes Charges

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. —(U.P.)—Norman M. Littell, ousted assistant attorney general, charged today that powerful realty interests, with representatives in the government, were trying to control disposal of fifteen billion dollars worth of surplus war real estate.

Littell was dismissed by President Roosevelt yesterday for insubordination to Attorney General Francis Biddle. As he packed up his papers preparatory to surrendering his office at the Justice Department Littell's friends in congress were fighting for an investigation of the rift which broke headlines this week.

The former head of the Justice Department's land division told an interviewer that the National Association of Real Estate Boards was making a "powerful drive" to influence or control policy, in dispersal of surplus realty. He said the Association had sought to "get" him politically.

Caldwell, home service officer of the American Red Cross, who is submitting the matter to the residents of the city to see if possible to secure some furnishings that may have been discarded and stored away, that might just be the needed furnishings for the recreational place.

Among the articles needed is a radio or a phonograph or both; lounging chairs, davenport, drapes or curtains, magazines and books, games of all kinds and a piano if possible.

Array Of 'Less' Days To Face United States

Beefless, Baconless, Butterless, Cigaretless East Faces Prospect of Chickenless Days

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. —(U.P.)—A beefless, baconless, butterless, cigaretteless East today faced the prospect of becoming chickenless as well.

After Dec. 11 virtually all chickens produced and processed in the Del-Marva peninsula and Shenandoah Valley must be set aside for army purchase. The region normally supplies from 60 to 80 per cent of the needs of east coast civilians.

The embargo is expected to stay in effect for at least the first three months of 1945. During that time the army hopes to buy at least 2,000,000 pounds a week to stave off a deficit of 110,000,000 pounds which would have developed at the current rate of purchases.

The "biggest black market" in the history of the producing area was blamed by officials for the inability of the army to meet requirements through open market purchases. Reports indicate that chicken is selling for five and six cents above ceiling prices.

A hint that the rest of the nation may also find chickenless days on its menu came as the War Food Administration said that the set-aside may be extended to other major chicken-producing areas. A spokesman said Georgia and Alabama were being considered next for the embargo list.

The entire state of Delaware and 20 counties of Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia will be affected by the order.

Blue Devils Start Basketball Season Friday Night

Lose Exciting Game to Lincoln Northeast by the Score of 34 to 24

The curtain was rung up Friday evening at the high school gym on the 1944-45 basketball season, before an audience that filled the capacity of the gym, the largest in several years.

The opponents of the Blue Devils was the Northeast high school Rockets of Lincoln and the contest was a typical first game of the season for both of the teams.

In the opening part of the game, the locals guarded their opponents very closely, as the result there were a number of fouls called on the local boys, Livingston and Charles Eaton, bowing out of the contest via this route ere the game was over.

The score at the half time was 16 to 9. In the last half of the game the Blue Devils really started a scoring spree, sparked by Captain Sterling Cole and Dale Reckard, the locals coming strong to whittle down the Rockets and making the contest a real dog fight.

Cole led the scoring of the evening with twelve points while Reckard with eight was the second and Kipper, Lincoln guard, led his team with seven markers.

The next game will be here with North high of Omaha as the opponents on December 5th at the local court.

Decision Given In Cass County Drainage Case

Case of Philip J. Born vs August Keil Covers Drainage Near Cullom

A case that has attracted more or less attention in this county was decided Monday by Judge Thomas E. Dunbar in the district court. This case was that of Philip J. Born vs August Keil and covered the disposal of surface waters on the farms of the two parties, the farms being located northwest of this city in the Cullom neighborhood.

The plaintiff sought an injunction against the defendant to stop interference with the water course and the defendant in a cross petition asked that the plaintiff be enjoined from placing barriers in the water course.

The case was heard here in September and has since been under advisement.

The court held that from time immemorial a natural course of surface water from plaintiff's land described as lot 9 was from the south to the north through a natural water course, but which at one time had some work done on it by the then owner of said land, that the plaintiff's land is also drained by a slight gully or natural surface water drain from the southwest to the northwest corner of said land where it is supposed to drain under the road through a tube or pipe which became buried and disused and water ran over the road and was deflected by plaintiff's own barrier and some of the water was diverted on the land of the defendant.

The court held that in the action each party was entitled to some relief.

The court found that the plaintiff is entitled to an injunction to prevent defendant from widening, changing or deepening the east end of "East Creek" between the bridge and the west side of plaintiff's land, but is not entitled to an injunction to stop the defendant cleaning out creek.

The court held that the defendant on cross petition is entitled to an injunction to enjoin plaintiff from constructing further dikes at the east end of "East Lake."

The plaintiff is restrained from constructing a barrier, dike or obstruction. Plaintiff to remove obstruction in a thirty day period.

The court assessed the costs in the case as three-fourth to the plaintiff and one fourth to the defendant

A Victory for Good Government

The people of Nebraska have always approved good state policy and government. By the same token, they have invariably rejected bad state policy and bad government. It was characteristic of the wisdom and watchfulness of Nebraskans that they overwhelmingly rejected the recent Prohibition proposal. The voters looked upon Prohibition as bad government.

The Committee is well aware that this election was no triumph for the so-called "wets." It was a victory for good government. Many of the most active workers against the return of Prohibition were themselves total abstainers.

The result was a victory for the traditional common sense and practical judgment of our people . . . a victory all Nebraskans can be proud of.
