Washington Report by Congressman H. Buffett

On the opening day of the 79th Congress, 670 bills were introduced and 45 House resolutions. A House bill deals with public matters and must have senate and presidential approval. A House resolution has to pass only the house. Suppose congress were to consider seriously each of the bills introduced on the opening day. That job probably would take all the time of this session.

Of course, many bills are introduced on the same subject, so that actually Congress would not necessarily consider 670 bills, even if it were so inclined. As a practical matter, very few of the bills introduced ever get as much as a hearing. In some cases, the representative does not hope for action—he has simply introduced the bill at the request of groups who provide him with votes.

Probably the record number of bills for the opening day were introduced by Jerry Voorhis, California. A quick glance at the record shows he introduced 24 bills. Other individual members introduced from 15 to 20 bills. You can bet your shirt on this fact—that many of the bills introduced contained new ways to spend your money. Proposing schemes expending other people's savings is still popular in congress.

Reading the titles of the new bills in Congress is always fascinating. Every title is selected with the utmost care, so that it will sound good to people who jump to conclusions. You know about the legislation known as the Lend-Lease law. That title sounds very fine, doesn't it? Lend and Lease. But now it is admitted that it is not lease and lend.

Camp Hood, Texas, have been guests of his parents in Weeping Water, and his sister, Mrs. Wilmer Harshman, here.

The Nehawka Woman's club enjoyed an afternoon at the home of Bessie Murdoch Friday. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. A. B. Rutledge and Mrs. A. E. Small. Mrs. Nelson Berger led the Flag Salute. Miss Evelyn Wolph led the devotional lesson, using as the topic, New Year's Thoughts. "Hobbies" was the program of the afternoon, given by Mrs. R. C. Pollard; she showed a collection of rocks gathered from most all parts of the U. S., which is a hobby of her husband. He also has extensively carried out a tree hobby, and trees are planted over most of this community by him, for both their beauty and also for orchard purposes. Several members displayed or told about their hobbies. Mrs. G. C. Sheldon showed her stamp collection. Some members had unique collections and hobbies.

Janet Nutzman favored with a musical and singing number on the piano.

The hostesses served delicious refreshments to the group.

OBITUARY

Robert Newell Crawford was born October 12, 1866 on his parent's homestead in South Bend precinct, Cass County, Nebraska, and spent all his life in Cass county, most of it on the farm home. His parents were pioneer settlers from Knox County. In 1905 he went to live with his invalid mother in Murdock. After her passing away in 1936 he continued to live at their home until failing health forced him to seek the help and care he needed at Rest Haven in Weeping Water. He entered the home in March of 1943 and passed away there on January 2, 1945.

He married but the marriage ended in estrangement. From this union a son survives and is living in Oregon. He leaves behind also one brother, James Crawford of South Bend; and two sisters, Mrs. Carl Radki of Wankoma, Oklahoma, and Mrs. M. E. Bushnell of Ashland, Nebraska.

Robert was honest and upright in his dealings with his fellowmen. He was generous to others in greater need than himself. "Whatever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report" these were the qualities which characterized his life and were the strength of his service.

The funeral service was conducted— it is gifts and handouts.

When you go shopping, do you look at the price tag before you buy an article? Or if the price is not plainly marked, do you ask, "What will this cost me?" Finding out the price of goods and services before placing the order is old-fashioned horse sense. When politicians try to sell you a bill of goods glamorized by pretty words and clever phrases, remember to ask the price. That's what the people of Europe forgot to do.

The decision to extend the Committee to Investigate Un-American Activities came as a surprise. One opponent of this committee was particularly vociferous. He declared this committee (formerly the Dies Committee) had had the large number of 13 employees, and over the years had spent 675 thousand dollars of the taxpayers' money. I tried to suggest to him that we had a uniformed committee of almost 12 million, costing some hundreds of billions, to stamp out un-American activities in other lands—perhaps we should spend a few dollars on that problem at home.
