

CITY COUNCIL APPROVES CHANGES IN WARDS OF CITY—TWO WARDS

The city council at its session Monday evening voted to change the present set up of five wards for the city, to two only, this being embodied in ordinance No. 783 that was placed on its second and third readings and under the suspension of the rules adopted.

The ordinance provides that all that part of the city lying north of Main street and to the city limits, shall be the first ward, and all that section of the city south of Main street, to the city limits, shall be the second ward. Each ward will have two councilmen.

The ordinance while passed cannot be effective until in 1946 when the mayor and members of the council expire. Councilmen elected this coming spring will be for the term of one year only.

The council also heard the reading of a proposed ordinance covering the regulation and inspection of the places in the city where food is sold, the measure calling for regulation as to the handling of the food for sanitation. This was referred to the judiciary committee for further action.

Chairman Schneider of the tax and property committee brought up the matter of residents of property that the city had tax certificates upon, being allowed to pay off the delinquent taxes in small payments. This plan had been approved in other places and it was decided to leave the matter to the committee and the city attorney for action.

Councilman Schutz stated that he had been approached by Chairman Don Seivers of the salvage committee, asking that the city participate in the drive for tin salvage that will open in February. It was voted to allow the streets, alleys and bridges committee to use the city truck in hauling the tin from the school grounds where it is to be collected.

The parks and improvement committee was given power to have the water system in the basement of the city hall adjusted if they found necessary.

Residents of Oakmont addition to the city presented a petition asking for the installing of two new lights along the drive through that addition and for the moving of a light on Chicago avenue to near the entrance of Oakmont drive and the avenue. This was referred to the lighting committee.

Councilman Vroman brought up the matter of large trucks parking near the Wimpy Inn on Chicago avenue, the trucks without light and making a dangerous condition. There is ample parking space provided by the Inn but the drivers park out into the main highway. The police were notified to look after this condition.

The following claims were ordered paid by the council:

Church Group Is Building Attractive Downtown Center

One of the Small Buildings in the 400 Block Being Made Into Club-rooms

For a great many years the small one story building on the north side of Main street, from 4th to 5th, stood idle and unoccupied until one afternoon received remodeling and became useable business buildings.

The last of these buildings was that located just east of the Dwyer building, this finally attracting the attention of Rt. Rev. Monsignor George Agius, pastor of the St. John's church, who conceived the idea of a downtown hall or center for the use of his parish. He carried the idea farther, made the purchase of the building on his own initiative. Securing the building, Monsignor Agius then placed the proposition up to the members of his church organizations, finding a ready response, the result that the building is rapidly being remodeled and made a place that will be invaluable to the church people, as well as the community.

The building will be known in the future as the St. John's Hall, devoted to the activities of the parish outside of the church itself.

While there is still a great deal of work to be carried out, the transformation on the interior of the building has been wonderful.

Frank Konfrst was called in to do the carpenter work, Emmett Rice the plastering and James Wondra, the electrical work. John Libershal, who looks after the church property, added his part and has been busy in getting the work lined up so that the building might be complete. It was necessary to pipe water and gas into the building and this has been done.

While the painting and several other finishing touches must be made, the structure is now nearing its final completion.

At the south front of the building there is a good sized room that can be used for larger meetings and that may be enlarged by the use of the room to the north that will be curtained off when not needed and used for the smaller group meetings.

The north end of the building is devoted to the kitchen where the ladies of the church have taken over and really are going to town. They have secured the necessary equipment for the kitchen use, stoves and steam table being already on the scene, awaiting installing. A part of this kitchen equipment was secured through Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Langer from their former restaurant equipment. The ladies are securing a full set of dishes and other needed articles for making this a real up to the minute place for preparing luncheons when needed.

The rooms are to have fluorescent lighting throughout and will be provided with the rest rooms and all necessary accommodations for those who use the building.

Entertains for Visiting Sailor

The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Winsett was the scene of a very pleasant family gathering Tuesday evening, members of the family being here to visit with CPO Arley Griffin, who is home on leave and Mrs. John Moore of Tulsa, Oklahoma, brother and sister of Mrs. Winsett.

The members of the family had a most delightful time with the guests and their mother, Mrs. E. M. Griffin. Those attending were, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Griffin, Union, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shoemaker, Nebraska City, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Galbeth and children, Union; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Griffin, Union.

Mrs. Moore departed this morning for her home at Tulsa after a very pleasant visit here.

Richard Patrick Case on Furlough

Richard Patrick Case of this city is home for his first furlough since enlisting as an air cadet. He received his first training at Madison, Wisconsin, completing his work there and then being sent south for further training.

He has been stationed in Florida where he had advanced training in radio and had just recently graduated.

After a visit here with the home folks and old friends he is expecting to report to the east coast for assignment.

"Dick" is looking fine and has added weight in the training period.

Food For Folks

"One Square" a Day at School

Did you know there's a movement afoot to stamp out "lopsided" eating habits in this country? It's part of the Food Fights For Freedom program which is starting a drive for better breakfasts and better lunches, especially in homes having war workers and school children.

One of the main ideas is to discourage the habit of sending children off to school with coffee and a roll for breakfast; a sandwich and piece of cake in their lunch boxes, and then piling most of the day's food into an evening meal. True, this system allows the homemaker to concentrate on making the evening meal a "super" one, but most likely her family will come out on the short side, nutritionally speaking.

Nutrition experts say that each meal ought to carry its share of daily food requirements, so efforts are being made to make mothers conscious of the meal which starts off the day for their families, and to follow through at lunch time.

Odds Against Some

But when it comes to lunch for school children, many mothers have the cards stacked against them. They are the mothers whose children ride on buses to attend school in neighboring towns, or who for some reason can't come home for lunch. These mothers must either pack one-third of their children's daily food needs in a lunch pail, or else—the child will go on eating in a "lopsided" fashion, unless something is done about his lunch at school. This is where the community school lunch program fits into the picture. Under its plan if a type A lunch is served, the child is provided with about one-third of his daily nutritional requirements. This lunch provides at least one-half pint of milk; 2 ounces of meat or meat alternate; ½ cup of a vegetable or fruit; whole grain or enriched bread or rolls, and 2 teaspoons of butter or fortified margarine.

Two other kinds of lunches—type B which has the same type of food but smaller portions than type A, and type C which is one-half pint of milk—are provided. These supplement lunches brought from home. That the school lunch plays a vital role in the efficient feeding of young America was recognized by the Congress and the President when $50,000,000 was appropriated again this year to assure the War Food Administration funds to help schools needing financial aid in carrying out their locally sponsored program.

Local groups must have the same high regard for the program, for it is largely by the efforts of such as local school boards, parent teacher groups, church and civic organizations, that better lunches have been made available in local schools of high school level or under.

Unseen Results
But the virtue of the school lunch program doesn't stop at providing the child with a better lunch. The program has a whole set of virtues. One of them lies in the tendency of children to imitate at home what is learned in school.

Better eating habits learned in school and brought home may mean the school lunch program will lead indirectly to a better fed adult population.

Purchase by local sponsors of nutritious food locally abundant, for use in the school lunch program, also provides a welcome market for local producers, but in a larger sense it means more, for it is an important part of the school lunch program which marks a step forward in the drive to give American school children "three squares" a day, so they won't feel "kinda hungry" all day at school, and "stuffed" after dinner in the evening.

Rotarians Pay Lewiston Visit Tuesday Night

Rural-Urban Meeting Held at Community Center—Ladies Serve Very Fine Dinner

Tuesday evening the Plattsmouth Rotary club paid a visit to the Lewiston Community center, south of this city where they were hosts to an equal number of the farmers of that section of Cass county.

The ladies of the community had arranged a chicken dinner that was greatly enjoyed by all of the party, proving a fine treat.

The meeting was in charge of Arthur Troop and was an occasion that all enjoyed, the men getting together in a social way that is characteristic of the Rotarian objectives.

Mr. Troop presented Prof. Frolich of the experiment station of the University of Nebraska, one of the well known authorities on farming and crop production.

The speaker discussed the production of crops, the necessity for the rotation of the crops, also the matter of securing proper seeds for the planting season to produce the best results.

High School Has Needed Changes

Plattsmouth high school has been in the process of rejuvenation for the past three weeks and is looking much better for the operation.

Due to the Lanum Act, which provides supplementary government funds for schools in war areas, Plattsmouth High School was recently the recipient of approximately $10,000. Of this amount $1,000 has been used to lay asphalt tile flooring in the corridors and on the main landings. An estimated $2,000 is being used to install 250 lockers for the junior and senior high school students.

Each locker will be shared by two students. A sufficient deposit will be required of the student for the rental of a locker key to insure the return of the key. The lockers should be finished and ready for use by the end of next week.

H. C. Tiekotter has charge of the locker construction and H. L. Kruger, the painting.

Coyote Hunt In County On Sunday

One of the interesting and exciting coyote hunts that are a part of the fall and winter sport in this section of the west is to be staged on next Sunday.

The hunt will be held in the central part of the county and a very large number are expected to participate in the event.

The hunters will meet at the junction of highways No. 1 and 50, west of Murray at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The west and north lines will meet at the corner east of the Immanuel Lutheran church.

An added feature will be the fact that two "cub" planes will probably be on hand from Omaha to participate in the hunt and to observe the coyotes from the air.

Trucks will leave the court house in this city at 1 o'clock Sunday and take the hunters to the scene of the hunt.

The proceeds of the hunt will go to the American Red Cross.
