Shell, half through, swells to twice normal diameter.

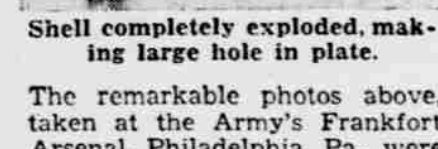

Shell is now bursting inside the plate.

Shell completely exploded, making large hole in plate.

The remarkable photos above, taken at the Army's Frankfort Arsenal, Philadelphia, Pa., were made at one-millionth of a second exposure by a new super-speed X-ray machine, made possible by a new electronic tube developed by Dr. Charles M. Slack of the Westinghouse Lamp Division. The photos show that a high explosive shell inflates to twice its normal diameter just before it bursts while penetrating a steel plate.
