

Read Barber Bill In Legislature

LINCOLN, Neb., (U.P.)—Legislation designed to better the barbering and cosmetology trades was read for the first time in the legislature today and advanced to select file.

Sen. James H. Anderson's (Scottsbluff) barbering bill—which would establish regulation under which barber colleges might operate and prohibit the college from charging fees for services rendered by its students—met strong opposition from senators who objected it would close the field to many men.

Anderson explained the proposed measure was aimed at "racketeering" colleges which act as shops, charging fees for the "poor" services of their students. The fact that Nebraska has no barber college is due to the ill repute into which they have fallen through such practice, he said. Sen. Carl P. Jeffords, Mullen, sought to kill the bill on grounds that it would hurt returning servicemen who wish to enter the trade. He, and others supporting his motion, asserted that barbers at best eke out a bare living from the business and that any move to curtail profits eventually would result in fewer barbers.

"There always is someone to oppose any effort to better a trade, and the person who just made the motion to kill is a perfect example of that," Anderson snapped, reminding the legislature that no opposition was made to the bill at public hearing. Jeffords' motion was defeated, 19-15.

God's Will and His Way

In Memory of President Franklin D. Roosevelt

The death has stilled President Roosevelt's voice. One who has been of the nation's, the greatest choice. It has stilled the voice upon which all had relied. In his humanitarian zeal for which he has died.

President Roosevelt has paid the great supreme sacrifice. In the greatest moment when the nation needed his advice. To lead it in the greatest struggle of all earthly time. Guided with the hand of God and His Power Divine.

His death has struck the feeling of every American heart. To hear of his untimely death that he had to part. It has struck the inmost depths of every human soul. Not anyone in particular, but the nation as the whole.

Nearing the climax of the nation's greatest war. That he had ceased the task before the war was over; And now that peace and freedom on earth might survive. The nation must continue to struggle and to strive on.

It is now for our country to take up the great human task. That is what our President Roosevelt would of us ask: To finish the ardent work which he has had begun. Continue, fight on until victory and war is won.

And when victory is won and the peace is all signed. To its decision the nation must be willingly resigned; That freedom all over the whole world shall reign. And this great world war was not fought in vain.

Our forefathers fought that our nation might be free. That no trying and miracle on this earth shall be; That every human being is endowed with inalienable rights. To live in peace and in happiness not crushed by might.

May God in Heaven grant him an everlasting peace. That in his heavenly abode where eternity shall never cease; In Heaven above to be fully and gratefully repaid. For the many sacrifices on earth that he has made.

Soldier Enjoys Home Canned Food

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dieter received a letter from their son, Pfc. Daniel F. Dieter, a member of the signal corps, written from the Marianas in the Pacific.

He states that he is well and enclosed with the letter a label from a can of hominy that had been packed by the Norfolk company at their Plattsmouth plant. He says the hominy was a real treat to the soldiers as a part of their mess.

This shows that the Norfolk Co. and their employees are doing their part in the great war in the Pacific and Europe.
