Weeping Water

MRS. THOMAS MURTEY, Correspondent

There are times when words fail us. When our minds are bewildered. Tears cause the keyboard on our typewriter to be dimmed, and it is hard to put on paper our thoughts. So it is today, and each day, when a message arrives telling us of the death of one of our Weeping Water boys on the battle fields. The people of the small rural towns are limited so closely that the sorrow of one is the sorrow of all. This was demonstrated this past week, when Mrs. C. E. Tefft received word of the death of her son, Sgt. Ward Tefft, while in action, in Germany, March 28, and again Sunday morning when a large number of friends from Weeping Water and adjoining towns, gathered at the Congregational Church, of which Sgt. Tefft was a member, to attend a memorial service in his honor.

Rev. John H. Pryor was in charge of the service, and Miss Martha Wallick presided at the pipe organ. In front of the altar was a large basket filled with calla lilies and snapdragons. This was flanked on either side with tall vases holding white waterlilies, pink carnations and pink snapdragons. Preceding the Memorial service, Rev. Pryor opened the morning service as usual. This was followed with a short sermon using as his text, John 4-34. The Memorial service opened with the playing of Handel's Largo, on the pipe organ. For his Memorial address Rev. Pryor took the theme for his address from the ninety first Psalm. This was used in recognition of the fact that only recently Sgt. Tefft, had expressed his pleasure in the reading of the Psalms, since being in the Army.

Nazi Leaders Reported Hiding in Harz Forests

Hitler, Goering and Himmler Reported Hiding in Caverns From the Allied Forces

With the U. S. 9th army, Germany, (UPI)—U. S. army officers said today there were unverified reports that Adolf Hitler, Herman Goering and Heinrich Himmler were hiding in caves in the Harz forests. That area has been occupied by the Americans.

The German radio said Hitler was in Berlin, leading the fight against the Russians.

The report about nazi leaders hiding in the chain of caverns German civilians.

On the face of it the report appeared unreliable since organized resistance in the Harz forest was declared ended Sunday, but the 8th armored division now was policing what was believed to be a couple of thousand German stragglers without major opposition.

Head 8th armored division officers said reports from independent sources cross-checked in their details. Dozens of Germans were reported as having said that high nazi authorities had been hiding in the huge chain of caverns near Blankenburg. One chamber alone was reported to have a capacity of more than 1,000 persons who would have a roof of solid rock over them.

A darkened and heavily guarded train was said to have unloaded in the mountains between Blankenburg and Elbingerode, probably at Rueland, 14 to 18 days ago. That was before the Americans closed the ring along the Harz pocket.

Capt. Carroll M. Wood of the 8th armored division said nobody positively identified Hitler, Himmler and Goering, but the Germans in the area were convinced they were aboard the train. Other reports had circulated in the area that Himmler was in Blankenburg two days ago. According to the reports two anti aircraft cars preceded the train and a third followed. Directly behind the train were two heavily laden freight trains which were said to have unloaded their contents into trucks.

Rail way men were quoted as saying a special crew handled the train from the start to destination. No one was allowed near them. Even the railway officials were reported ignorant of the contents of the cars and identity of the passengers.

When they obtained their license, they indicated the wedding might come off in May. But that was just to throw their friends off the trail, they admitted, and Monsignor Martin Keating performed the ceremony Saturday.
