Weeping Water

MRS. THOMAS MURTEY, Correspondent

The John Heebner home has been the scene of a very happy family reunion this past week when their son-in-law and daughter, Sgt. James R. Jabot, and Miss Margaret Heebner, arrived from Denver. Sgt. Jabot is stationed at Camp Walters, Tex. They arrived Tuesday and Sgt. Jabot left Monday to return to Camp Walters. Mrs. Jabot and Miss Margaret Heebner remained for a longer visit. Other guests arriving in time for the reunion Sunday were Mrs. Heebner's brother, John Wicker, and daughter, Shirley of Wolbach, Neb.; her brother-in-law, Charles Hessel and daughter Hazel of Grand Island; their son, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Heebner, of Nehawka; a niece, Mrs. Mabel Lewis and son George of Nehawka; and their son, John Heebner, wife and daughter Sue Ellen of Weeping Water.

Major and Mrs. Marvin Hunt and small daughter, of Washington, D. C., arrived the first of the week for a visit at the home of Major Hunt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunt. Mrs. Merritt Pollard of Seymour, Iowa, and Miss Jean Truman, were also week end guests at the Hunt home.

Sunny Hill school closed last Friday with a community picnic held at the school house. Miss Eva May Lingle is their teacher.

A community picnic has become an annual affair in the Oxford School district, and it is the custom to hold these picnics the Sunday following the close of the school year. Last Sunday the people of the community met at the school house, with well filled baskets of food, and all enjoyed a fine visit. Miss Irene Doeden is the teacher.

Bert Philpot left Sunday for St. Louis to attend a meeting of the Parina Mills Feed Co. He expects to return either Wednesday or Thursday.

Weeping Water had two members of the graduating class at the University of Nebraska this year. They are Miss Grace Steckley, who completed the Business Administration course, and Miss Mary Allen, who had chosen the Arts and Science. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Steckley and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen, were in Lincoln to attend the graduation exercises Monday.

Returning home this week from Grinnell College, Iowa, was Miss Mary Ann Pryor, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. John C. Pryor. Miss Pryor has been honored with the first prize, which is known as the Steiner prize, of fifteen dollars, for the best short story, and the Whitcomb prize, of seventy dollars, for the best poem. These are prizes which are awarded annually to Grinnell pupils.

Weeping Water people are rejoicing with Mr. and Mrs. John Rulge of Avoca over the good news that they received a message from their son, Roy Rulge, Tuesday. He has been missing and later reported as a prisoner of war, for just about a year.

A letter from Mrs. W. D. Lenker to friends here, tells of her interesting work as house mother at the Woman's Service Center of the U.S.O. for the girls in service, in Fresno, California. She expects to remain there this summer and return to Weeping Water in time for Joy Ann to enter school this fall.

It's picnic time again, at the Ray Norris home, June 27 the members of the Eastern Star and their families will picnic on the picnic on the Norris lawn, and Sunday, June 3, is the annual picnic dinner for the members of the Congregational Church, and their families, and for all who attend the Congregational church.

The Robert Gray home was the scene of another of those happy gatherings, which have become an annual affair. I mean the group of horseback riders, who are enthusiastic co-workers in the annual Horse Show held during our County Fair. They met Sunday for a picnic dinner on the Gray lawn, after which they toured the town and country roads on horseback. Each had brought their own horses, and they were an interesting group as they rode through town. Six towns were represented. From Lincoln came Mr. and Mrs. Lester Loomis, of Lincoln; from Plattsmouth, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grosshans and two daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Chet Wiles; from Murdock, were Mr. and Mrs. Bud Amgweit; from Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fomhoff and two daughters; and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kell; from Nehawka, were G. W. Weik and Mr. Stone; from Weeping Water were Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Herman, Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Hebard and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Heneger, with their host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray and their two sons.

The Camp Fire Girls enjoyed a picnic supper Thursday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard H. Waldo, after which they were invited to the home of one of their members, whose birthday came on that day. Mrs. O. C. Specht had prepared ice cream and cake, in honor of her daughter Sallee's twelfth birthday. From the Specht home they went to their headquarters for their evening meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Colbert of Hastings, visited Mr. Colbert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Colbert from Saturday evening until Sunday evening. Other guests at the Colbert home for dinner on Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Heneget, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Doty and two daughters, Winona and Shirley.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stacey left Monday for Saginaw, Michigan to attend the wedding of Mr. Stacey's sister, Miss Lora Stacey, who was a visitor at the Stacey home here last summer.

Mrs. Louis Albrayter, Sr., is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Canston, at Avoca, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gruber of Murray, were Sunday visitors at the E. M. Ruby home. Mr. and Mrs. Gruber recently returned from a two years stay in California.

Jean Ruhge of Avoca, spent last week with her aunt, Mrs. Ed Steinkamp.

Returning home this week from the University of Nebraska were Miss Grace Steckley, Miss Mary Allen, Miss Marjory Allen, Robert Keckler and Dick Specht.

Charting a Course For the War Bride

THE war bride has an uncharted course to follow, and most of the advice which is showered upon a young married woman is of no value to her. The reason, of course, is that marriage is normally a state of being together while the war marriage is a state of being apart.

The woman of courage will be able to manage, however, if she has, as Wordsworth says, "A few sound instincts and a few plain rules."

If the soldier husband is able to live at home part of the time, the best rule, now as always, is: "Set up a home of your own." It is not important that the home should be elaborate or properly and completely furnished. Who can do that, with priorities and taxes staring them in the face? What does matter is that a couple should have a separate establishment, working out their own destiny without too much interference from their parents.

For the most part, it is not possible for the war bride to live with her husband. Indeed, if he is shipped from camp to camp in this country, a sound rule for her is not to follow her husband around. This is rarely satisfactory; the wife is not content if her husband can give her little time, and she faces the difficulty of pulling up stakes constantly. He can provide her at best only with a travesty of a home.

AS a rule, a newly married couple begin their adjustment to one another and to married life in the privacy of their own home or apartment. In wartime, many of them are attempting to make this delicate adjustment under impossible conditions, without privacy, in Army camps where living conditions are crowded and unpleasant, or in the home of

Voting Subject Of Conference Approved

New Interpretation of the Yalta Formula of Voting Procedure Is Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A new interpretation of the Yalta formula of voting procedure by the United Nations Security Council was ready for approval today by the Big Four.

The final draft of a statement embracing the latest interpretation was prepared over the weekend by the technical experts of the American, British, Russian and Chinese delegations to the United Nations conference.

It will serve as a reply to a list of 22 questions submitted by the smaller nations in an effort to determine the exact area in which the Big Four and France—sitting as the five permanent members of the Security Council—can apply their veto power.

It will be considered at a Big Four meeting today. There was good prospect for immediate approval and the statement in all likelihood will be presented tomorrow to the little nations which have been awaiting the reply since early last week.

The outlook was good for final solution of the irksome veto question by mid-week, thus resolving another in the series of crises which have slowed progress by the conference.

Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., is scheduled to deliver a world-wide radio address on the progress of the conference at 7:30 P. M., pwt, tonight. He may be able to announce at that time that the Big Four have resolved the veto question. His speech will be broadcast nationally and shortwaved to American troops overseas.

The new interpretation of the Yalta voting formula, incorporating some last-minute suggestions made at Saturday's Big Four meeting, will emphasize that the formula itself remains unchanged. It reiterates that the Big Five must be unanimous in any decisions involving the use of force to deal with disputes.

It will make it clear, however, that the veto power is not applicable in cases where a nation is seeking to bring a complaint before the Security Council. The idea behind this is to assure little nations that the veto power will not be used to block efforts of any of them to bring an issue before the council. On the other hand, the interpretation will uphold the use of the veto prerogative in cases where the council orders an "investigation" of a dispute.

Thus, there is drawn a distinction between the hearing of a complaint, which is not considered "action" by the council, and the investigation of a complaint, which the Big Four does interpret as "action."

To Attend Naval Graduation

Mr. and Mrs. Harry White departed Saturday for Annapolis, Maryland, where they are to enjoy the colorful graduating exercises of the United States naval academy.

Their son, Allen E. White, is a member of the 1945 class and will receive his commission as Ensign in the Navy at the exercises on Wednesday, June 6th, and will return with the family for a visit here in Nebraska.

Marriage is a Serious BUSINESS

By Randolph Ray

There is no security, no sense of permanency, only an atmosphere of strangeness and discomfort. Separation awaits them at any moment. It is certainly the exceptional, not the average, marriage which can survive these weeks of distorted living.

The third rule for the war bride is, "Keep in touch with your husband's family." This is particularly important in wartime when the serviceman needs, in the midst of chaos and violence, to know that there is harmony at home. The war bride should make an effort to be friends with her husband's family and to see them frequently if she can. Reassuring news of this kind can do wonders at setting a fighting man's worries at rest and building his morale.

IT is absurd for a young couple to marry with the short-sighted idea, "I am marrying you, not your family." The family, on both sides, will inevitably prove to be an important factor in your life.

No bride can afford to forget that, henceforth, like it or not, her life is going to be closely bound up with "the whole connection of the individual man."

It is extremely important, therefore, that the couple shall be congenial with their in-laws. If there are strong antagonisms on either side, better stop and reconsider. For the fourth rule is, "Keep on good terms with your in-laws."

The deep-lying importance of solving the in-law problem intelligently appears when we learn that—whatever the ostensible reasons given in court—more divorces are caused by the interference of in-laws or by the necessity of having the parents, either of the husband or the wife, living with their married sons and daughters, than from any other cause.

No Collapse Seen During Reconversion

Small Business to Have a Large Part in the Expanding of Civilian Economy

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Administration leaders assured the nation today that there would be no economic collapse during the reconversion period but instead a swiftly expanding civilian economy in which small business would be given every possible encouragement.

Throughout the period between wars, they stressed, the emphasis will be on easing up government production controls to let the forces of free enterprise and competition get back to work.

A highly optimistic report on the nation's immediate economic future was given by war production chairman J. A. Krug, who said the country was much better prepared for reconversion now than it was in 1918.

Krug predicted that one year from today United States factories will be turning out durable civilian goods at an annual rate of $16,700,000,000—30 per cent higher than in 1939.

Krug said many workers would not even have to shift jobs. Of some 51,200,000 civilian workers now employed, he declared, 46,600,000 are in jobs that will continue regardless of war production.

Krug said the production program had now reached maturity and that despite pressing needs of the Japanese war the nation was ready to turn to the jobs of preparing for a peacetime economy.

During the in-between period, he emphasized, all possible controls will be lifted. What and how to produce will be left to the people who make and the people who buy.

Sgt. Kaffenberger Back to the States

Word has been received by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kaffenberger, of the fact that their son, S Sgt. Charles Kaffenberger, is now back in the United States.

Charles was wounded while participating in the Philippine campaign and has been brought back to the "states" and at this time is at a hospital in San Francisco.

The news was very pleasant to the parents as the son has been overseas for the past year and a half, participating in the active campaigns of the Pacific.

Increased Relief To China Seen

American Dollars Buy Twice as Much For Chinese Now as They Did in 1943

During the first quarter of 1945 each American dollar bought about twice as much relief in China as it did in 1943 due to improved exchange rates, according to announcement by Rev. T. Porter Bennett, local chairman of United China Relief, Inc.

"This increase was achieved in the face of mounting inflation," said Mr. Bennett. "In this fiscal year our organization will send to China $12,013,234, as compared to the 1943 total of $8,611,277. Thus, America's help to China will have increased in volume by about 40%, and around 200% in effectiveness in two years. It is fortunate indeed that we have been able to achieve this growth as China faces its ninth year of war.

"American donors can be assured that every dollar contributed to the national war fund, from which United China Relief receives most of its money, or to United China Relief direct, achieves the ultimate in results to aid our Chinese allies."
