(Continued from Page 1) trials. May said he wanted to establish who, through possible "criminal neglect," was to blame for the bloodshed and the ships and planes lost at Pearl Harbor. "I do not," May said, "propose to stand for any whitewash of the matter in any respect. Let the truth be told." Both the war and navy departments said they did not consider court martial proceedings warranted against anyone. Truman, however, said that if it develops that court martial proceedings are necessary, the men involved will have a prompt and fair trial. Meanwhile, the house and senate naval and military affairs committees will examine the reports to determine whether congress will undertake any further investigation.

Nebraskas Own Has but 49 Men From Entire State

By UNITED PRESS The 134th Infantry—formerly Nebraska national guard regiment—has only a little more than one per cent of its enlisted personnel from Nebraska, the regimental press relations officer said Tuesday. Forty-nine men, or 1.6 per cent, are Nebraskans. Pennsylvania with 294 men, 9.57 per cent, heads the list of 22 other states with higher representation. New York is second with 288, 9.38 per cent. Iowa has 74 men, 2.31 per cent. When mobilized Dec. 23, 1940, the regiment was entirely composed of Nebraskans. There was still an estimated 23 per cent, including most of the non-commissioned officers, of Nebraskans when the 134th went to Normandy in July, 1944. Many of the officers and men with more than 85 points have been transferred out of the regiment and a number already are home. Fourteen Nebraskans, with more than 85 points, volunteered to remain in service "for the duration" prior to V-J day and will come home with the regiment. They are: Col. Alford C. Boatman, Beatrice, regimental commander; Lt. Col. Dan E. Craig,

North Platte; Lt. Col. Carlyle F. McDannel, Hastings; Capt. Donald J. Krebbs, Hastings; Capt. Donald C. Rubottom, Gering; Capt. Glenn W. Suddler, Hastings; 1st Lt. Lawrence Eshelman, North Platte; 1st Lt. Wayne Gilmore, North Platte; 1st Lt. Thomas J. Ryan, North Platte; 1st Lt. Eugene Schmitz, Roseland; 1st Lt. John Tomeak, Cozad; 2nd Lt. Edward Supanich, North Platte; T. Sgt. Herbert Meredith, Nebraska City, and S. Sgt. William D. Stern, Scottsbluff. Information from the regiment indicates it soon will be sailing home, probably by Sept. 6 on the Queen Mary.
