Glycerine Supplies Are Lowest in Years

National supplies of glycerine are the lowest in years, and this lack of glycerine may slow down production of peacetime goods, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture, which points out that there isn't much chance for improvement in the fats and oils import picture for many months to come.

Glycerine, a by-product of soap making, was in short supply at the beginning of the war, and needed in tremendous quantities for ammunition, dynamite, explosives and medicines. Gradually, however, through making of soap and other wartime supplies for the Army and Navy, lend-lease, etc., the glycerine stockpile grew to huge proportions.

Now, due to shortages of industrial fats and oils, the glycerine situation again is acute, according to BAE.

To help turn out household and personal needs that the American people have gone without during the years of war, we must have more industrial fats and oils. Soap chips, laundry soap, toilet soap, nylon stockings, paper napkins, cotton sheets, refrigerators, electric fans, paint, pharmaceuticals, tires, linoleum, elastic stretch girdles, paper, oilcloth, plumbing fixtures are just a few of the products requiring industrial fats and oils in their manufacture.

Despite the end of the war, fats and oils cannot be imported from the islands of the South Pacific until plants are reconstructed, workers recruited, and shipping available to bring the processed oil back to this country.

Let's 'Tune in' on this Discussion...

Wherever you go you run into discussions like this. The topic might be anything from the current movie to important world affairs. But, to hold your own in these discussions, you must be "in the know." For instance, suppose the conversation switches to the merits of your Consumers Public Power District—

Here's Something To Remember—

When you talk about Consumers Public Power District, you are talking about thousands of Nebraskans—including yourself if you live in a community served by Consumers.

In reality, Consumers is the people of Nebraska. Under the provisions of the Nebraska Legislature, this Nebraska institution is owned and controlled by the people of Nebraska and operated for the sole benefit of Nebraskans.

To provide even further assurance that you may continue to enjoy the advantages provided by this state-wide electric system, the Nebraska Legislature has added to the law provisions that the local distribution system of any community served at retail by Consumers must be turned over to that community—debt-free—when Consumers has paid for the property, if the people of the community so desire.

YOU SHOULD KNOW THESE FACTS...

- 1 Consumers Public Power District is entirely self-supporting—while it pays taxes, it receives no tax money for its support.
- 2 As a part owner of Consumers, you receive the benefits but you are not required to invest one cent either directly or in taxes.
- 3 Consumers is actually a local institution. The people of each community are assured the benefits and ultimate debt-free ownership of the facilities in that community.
