Holy Week services were discussed and the members of the association decided to carry on with the pre-Easter services held each noon of Holy Week at the Cass theater. This program is sponsored by the Business Men's Ad Club with the program arrangements being made through the Ministerial Association.

The cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Christ" now being prepared by a community chorus under the direction of Miss Mildred Hall will be presented on Easter Sunday at the Presbyterian church with Mrs. Verna Goss serving as organist, according to plans made by the ministers at this meeting.

Clothes Washed In Cement Mixer

OKINAWA (Delayed) — Have you ever had your laundry done in a cement mixer?

Marines and Seabees at this Second Marine Air Wing base are enjoying this luxury. And the laundry is operated by Okinawan women, who have learned that their new-fangled washing machine is far superior to the old-fashioned method of beating out clothes on a rock.

The mixer, useless for its intended purpose after prolonged service, requires alterations when converted. These were taken care of by Seabee machinists and Marine transportation men. For instance:

Blades of the mixer were removed and replaced by six two-by-four bumpers. When the mixer rotates, the clothes hit against the bumpers as they do in most washers used by American housewives.

One side of the mixer had to be sealed. This was done by welding an oil drum top in place. To keep the other side watertight, the port into which the clothes are stuffed was fitted with a steel door, the gasket of which was made from the rubber lining of a Jap plane's fuel tank. The door is locked with the screw of an anti-aircraft gun.

To keep the washing machine filled with hot water, two 90mm. shell casings were welded together and fitted inside an oil drum. Heat from a fire under the drum rises through the casings, and water in the drum can be kept at any temperature desired. A piece of hose attached to the outlet valve is used to fill the washing machine and rinsing tubs. These tubs are oil drums, halved lengthwise.

Women employed in the lanugine machine and rinsing tubs. erment here. Besides, they are given small gifts such as soap with which to do their own laundry. They wouldn't think of taking advantage of their jobs by using the laundry's soap to do work for themselves.

All white clothes, after being removed from the machine, are scrubbed by the women and given several rinsings before being hung in the sun to dry.

Once dried, the clothes are sorted according to markings, then tied in bundles.
