Mannerheim Resigns Post as President Of Finland Monday

HELLSINKI (U.P.)— Marshal Carl Gustave von Mannerheim has resigned as president of Finland, it was announced officially Monday.

Mannerheim went to Portugal recently because of his health. He has been ill since his return several weeks ago, and his resignation has been expected. He is 79 years old.

A meeting of the Finnish cabinet was called for later today, and Premier J. K. Paasikivi was scheduled to speak over the radio this afternoon.

Paasikivi was handling the presidential duties, as he had done for some time. Responsible quarters expected him to be elected president.

A special law must be passed by parliament before a new president can be elected by parliament rather than by electors as the constitution provides.

Mannerheim succeeded Risto Rito as president in August, 1944.

Sole Authority

"That Russia interprets the Soviet-China treaty as giving her sole authority in the Dairen area for the war and the Russians won't consider the war ended until a Japanese peace treaty is signed. Meanwhile, they insist the territory is leased to the Soviet union and is just as Russian as Moscow.

The farmers of America, Sen. Langer went on, need more light so they can study such things as, for instance, the British loan. He read his bill to put on $3,750,000,000 for rural electrification, which in turn would put reading lamps on every farmhouse table. The agriculture committee took it.

spotted the wreckage through breaks in the clouds. The first searching party reached the scene hours later after a tortuous two-mile climb through heavy scrub timber and over jagged cliffs.

Paul McCarthy, San Diego newspaperman who accompanied the rescuers, said he saw the body of a woman, apparently Mrs. McCall, her child clasped in her arms as if trying to shield it.

"It was terrible," McCarthy said. "Bodies were broken beyond recognition. The plane apparently rammed into the mountain about 100 feet from the top with full throttle. Pieces of the plane and bodies were scattered over a quarter-mile area. It looked as if it had first struck, then bounced several hundred feet before catching fire.

"I counted 21 bodies on the ground," he said. "I looked into the fuselage but could see nothing but smashed metal. There probably are more bodies inside."

Loans Forgiven

In 1937, Sen. Langer said, the government loaned some money to farmers and now is trying to get it back. His bill called for these loans to be forgiven. Some $3,750,000,000 worth of them. The agriculture committee will consider the idea.

Sen. Langer said he'd noticed that the public debt seemed a little high. He had a bill. It called for reduction of same by $3,750,000,000. The finance committee got it. The senator sat down then and stuck his cigar in his mouth, cellophane still intact. Or what do you think he thinks about that loan?
