Mr. and Mrs. Donald Weimer and family visited Sunday at the Walter Weimer home. Fon Wilson was a Wabash visitor Sunday morning, when he came to get a car he was having repaired here. Mrs. Florence Wilson accompanied him to Lincoln and spent Monday visiting there. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith and Roberta had as their weekend guests relatives from Yuma, Colo. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Golden drove to Nebraska City Sunday afternoon, returning by the way of Syracuse where they had supper with Mrs. Golden's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ronnon. Romance Finally Blooms WALPOLE, N. H. (AP)—When John Kilburn—Walpole's first settler in 1749—left town because Col. Benjamin Bellows, a later settler, was granted a charter from the Governor of New Hampshire, Bellows offered him any 50 acres if he'd come back. Kilburn accepted and chose the land adjoining the Bellows' estate. Though the two families lived as neighbors for years, they never intermarried until nearly 150 years had passed at which time a fourth-generation Bellows married a sixth-generation Kilburn.

FARM COMMUNITY SMALL COMMUNITY LARGE COMMUNITY IN COMMUNITY THERE IS STRENGTH The cornerstone of democracy is said to be the traditional Town Meeting. The strength of the nation lies in its community life. All communities, large or small, have similar objectives, similar plans for progress and betterment. As these elements apply in a single community, they likewise apply—but on a larger scale—in a "community of communities." Almost every town in Nebraska has a similar set of community ideals; a similar character of community personality; a similar plan for community progress. This statement applies to farm as well as incorporated communities. Comparable interests and ideals make community cooperation an easy undertaking. Working together becomes a pleasant endeavor. Serving 353 of these communities in Nebraska with low-cost, dependable electric power, your own Consumers Public Power District shares this Nebraska community spirit. The welfare of Nebraska and Nebraskans is a primary objective of Nebraska's own state-wide electric utility, your Consumers Public Power District, who believes with other forward-looking Nebraskans that this state "has just begun to grow."
