Young Voters, Negroes, Vets To Swell Vote

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI)—Georgia voters will turn out July 17 in apparently record-breaking numbers to nominate a governor, other statehouse officials and 10 Democratic congressmen in the state's first postwar Democrat primary.

Nomination is equivalent to election in heavily-Democratic Georgia.

Principal interest will center in the governor's race, in which the comeback attempt of crimson suspended Eugene Talmadge, seeking his fourth term on a platform based on "preservation of white supremacy," is strongly challenged by 35-year-old James V. Carmichael, Marietta attorney, former legislator and wartime manager of the huge Bell Bomber Plant near Atlanta.

Former Gov. E. D. Rivers, who served as the state's chief executive from 1937 to 1941, is the third major candidate in the race.

Candidate in Hospital

Also on the ballot is Hoke O'Kelly, 51-year-old Loganville attorney, who was overwhelmingly defeated by Talmadge in 1932.

O'Kelly, a veteran of both World Wars, is still recovering in a veterans hospital from injuries received last year in Germany.

Carmichael, backed by Gov. Ellis Arnall, who cannot succeed himself, has campaigned principally on a platform of "decency and honesty in government." He has pledged continuation of Arnall's policies and has denounced Talmadge and Rivers as "charlatans and political gangsters."

Federal court rulings that Negroes cannot be barred from voting solely because of color have resulted in large numbers of Negroes registering for the first time, but it is not believed they will be a major factor in the voting except in a few larger cities.

Carmichael, Rivers and O'Kelly all have defended the right of Negroes to enter the primary, and with Governor Arnall have urged compliance with the federal court rulings.

Pledges White Polls

Talmadge, however, has pledged himself to maintenance of the "white primary," and has campaigned largely on that issue.

The Ku Klux Klan flared up as an issue midway in the campaign and drew immediate denunciation from Carmichael and O'Kelly. The Klan has publicly endorsed no candidate, but reportedly is supporting Talmadge.

Rivers has remained silent on the Klan issue, but Talmadge has indicated that the "Klan will rule Georgia" if either Rivers or Talmadge is elected.

Rivers left office in 1941 under charges of a highway department scandal, in which Dr. Hiram W. Evans, former Imperial Wizard of the Klan, was indicted in connection with asphalt sales to the state. Evans pleaded only contumacious, and paid a $15,000 fine.

Rivers also was indicted, but the charges were not pressed.

New State Office

Voters also will choose the state's first lieutenant governor, a recently-created office under the new state constitution sponsored by Arnall.

Six candidates are in the race: Belmont Dennis, Covington publisher; State Sen. Speare Grayson of Savannah, State Adjutant General Marvin Griffin, State Sen. Pes. Frank Gross, State Revenue Commissioner M. E. Thompson and Dr. L. N. Huff, Atlanta optometrist.

All of the state's 10 Democratic congressmen are up for re-election, but only four face major opposition.

Rep. Helen Douglas Mankin, D., Ga., the state's first congresswoman, faced a terrific fight to retain her newly-won house seat in the Fifth (Atlanta) District. She is opposed by a strong suburban political organization which is backing Judge James C. Davis of Decatur. Capt. Weyman Lewis, a young veteran, is the third candidate.

Rep. Carly Vinson, D., Ga., dean of the state's house delegation, is opposed in the Sixth District by the Rev. Harvey Roughton.

Rep. Eugene E. Cox, D., Ga., outspoken leader among anti-administration Southern Democrats, is opposed by Neely Peacock, Albany attorney.

Henderson Lanham of Rome looms as a possible threat to Rep. Malcolm C. Tarver, D., Ga., in the Seventh District.

Most of the statehouse races pit one of Arnall's supporters against a Talmadge-backed candidate but a Talmadge-backed candidate, but the incumbents, mostly Arnall followers, are believed to have the edge in most races.

Huge Vote Increase

The vastly increased registration is estimated at nearly one million votes, and observers predict the balloting will top 600,000—almost double that of a normal vote in past years.

The new voters are largely young registrants who may now vote at 18 under an Arnall-sponsored bill, Negroes, and returning veterans. Repeal of the poll tax by the Arnall administration also is expected to swell the total.

Under Georgia's county unit system—a state version of the national electoral college—a candidate could receive a plurality of the popular vote but lose the election.

The system gives every county at least two unit votes, whereas the largest counties—including Fulton (Atlanta) with its 340,000 population—receive only six unit votes.

Political observers believe the increased registration will work in Carmichael's favor. The young former legislator is heavily supported by young voters' organizations and college students, and is believed in line for a majority of veteran and Negro votes.

The advantage might be upset, however, under the unit vote system, by Talmadge's strength in small rural communities, where anti-Negro sentiment is strongest and Negro voting is light. Three of these thinly-populated counties, for example, could offset the entire vote of Atlanta, or any other city in the state.

Everett Lynn Dies

At Lincoln Hospital

ELMWOOD, (Special)—Everett Lynn, veteran of World war I, died Friday evening at the veterans hospital in Lincoln.

Funeral arrangements had not yet been completed.

When a springer spaniel dog and a doberman pinscher are being kept in working condition, it requires an average of 2,200 and 2,620 calories respectively, per day, to feed them.

Famed Market Street of San Francisco puts on its best party dress in preparation for the Shrine Victory Convention which opens there July 23. Shown aiding a noble of Islam Temple are Irene Muhrlin, left, and Carol Crandall, as banners and bunting go up along street.

Because the vertical distance between the highest and the lowest points on the earth's surface is only 12 miles, a correct model globe eight inches in diameter would appear almost smooth.

General Duty Nurse

THE operation was performed that afternoon as scheduled and Sally telephoned the patient's family as she had promised and got in touch with Miss Niles. From the tremor in her voice, Sally suspected she was very fond of her boss and assured her she would let her know his condition in the morning and from time to time thereafter.
'He won't be able to have visitors for several days, Miss Niles,' she told the girl; 'but you are the one he wants to see first, so just as soon as he is able to have callers, I will let you know.'
It was a week later that the feeding tube was removed and Ronald Virgil was able to have soft food.
'I wonder if you have any idea of how I feel, Nurse?' he asked as he ate the semi-liquid offered him. 'This is the first time in years that I have been able to eat with any degree of comfort or enjoyment. I think, perhaps, this afternoon I might have a caller. Perhaps Miss Niles could come. Do you suppose she could, Nurse?'
'I can telephone and see, Mr. Virgil. You are looking so much better that I feel sure we can take down the No Visitors sign from your door.'
'Please don't,' he pleaded. 'Not for a day or two, anyway. I—I don't feel up to much and—'
'Of course you realize your sister has been here every day, don't you? It has been very hard to keep her away from you.'
'I suppose so; but—please let me have a few more days—alone. Then, I feel I shall be able to cope with anything.'

day. I hate to do it; but I'll have to send her off.'
'I want to see her—I'll stick around for a minute.' The doctor grinned.
Sally opened the door, after knocking discreetly, and entered. The shining faces of the two inside spoke volumes and her smile was sympathetic as she interrupted them.
'This is our patient's first day for callers, Miss Niles, and we mustn't let him get too tired. I'm sure you can come back tomorrow—in the morning, if you like. Probably his family will want to come in the afternoon,' she explained tactfully.
The girl blushed and thanked her, while the eyes of the patient watched his beloved adoringly.
'Good-by, darling,' he said softly, and she stooped to kiss him quite as if it were customary.
'We're engaged,' he said triumphantly as the door closed behind her.
'Oh, I didn't know,' Sally said.
'My family doesn't approve,' he said baldly. 'I've been a fool and a coward, but not any longer. Now that I shall be well and like other men I feel I can face them. Mother and Etta are not dependent on me for support. Mother has plenty for both her and Etta; but somehow they have never wanted me to marry—to leave them. Ann and I have been in love for years. She understands; but now we shall be married just as soon as I am on my feet. I shall not do any explaining until it is all over. You have no idea how I feel, Nurse—now that I shall be as other men—well and strong.'
