British Move In
JERUSALEM (UPI)—British troop reinforcements moved into Palestine from Transjordan Monday as renewed military preparation were seen in the Haifa port, where the blast-damaged refugee transport Emmeir Heywood was being repaired.

day rioting, published the 2,000-3,000 death estimate. It said the injured numbered in thousands. Other sources estimated 4,000 hurt.

Piles of corpses still cluttered the streets, but mass fighting had dwindled to sporadic clashes and fires. British troops, shooting when necessary, began to get the city under control yesterday. It will take several days before complete calm is enforced, even if no further major outbreaks occur.

A government statement emphasized the difficulties involved in disposing of hundreds of corpses left in streets, ditches and yards as fighting erupted through the city. A stretch of death permeated the sun-scorched city.

Hospital and emergency feeding facilities were overtaxed. Collected garbage accumulated, and there was a threat of small pox and cholera.

Hero of Bataan Calls on Vets to Keep U. S. Strong

LINCOLN, Neb.—General Jonathan Wainwright, hero of Bataan, Monday called on veterans to make the statement that the United States remain strong in statehood and military strength.

"We are prepared if anyone anywhere tries to defeat us by a stab in the back," Wainwright, now commanding general of the 4th Army, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, said here Monday at the 28th annual state convention of the American Legion.

"America and the world cannot afford another war, and the best we can do is to be prepared," he told the crowd of delegates when he visited the Capital building.

"The nation," he said, "must maintain a well-trained and well-equipped regular army to act quickly in an emergency."

"This army," he continued, "must be backed up by a well-kept national guard, which includes every able-bodied man of military age."

Wainwright said, "I do believe that in itself troops will become strong. I do not believe the army will make a success, but they will have the requirements to meet an emergency," he continued. "If it makes us strong on another war, we are set."

Gov. Wright, Springfield, also spoke on the opening day of the convention, declaring that social and political misunderstandings have brought in "hostile states" demoralization, overrated and cloudy speaking.

"In social and political thought we are still in our infancy," the governor said. "We are not as unworldly as it is possible to be and our present view on world affairs is juvenile."

He called on the convention delegates to show "fidelity to the nation above the Legion" in combatting these misunderstandings.

Feed La Boon, national vice-commander of the Legion, urged veterans to carry their own load and not to ask so many favors of the public that it would reach the limit of its patience.

Delegates and visitors continued to pour into the capital city. Some 2,000 will attend the three-day session. Officials estimated about 12,000 have registered for the traditional parade Tuesday afternoon.
