Edson's Washington Column

BY PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(UPI)—There are four ways in which a nation can throw its weight around and make its influence felt in world affairs, according to Dr. Harold D. Lasswell of Yale.

Edson

Dr. Lasswell was one of the first students of World War I propaganda. In World War II, he was director of communications research. More recently, he made a survey of U. S. information and cultural relations in the Middle East for the State Department. He speaks as an authority.

His four instruments of foreign policy are these: (1) By force—meaning army, navy, military might, and conquest; (2) By economics—meaning international trade relations; (3) By symbols—meaning cultural relations and propaganda; (4) By promises—meaning diplomatic negotiation and treaty.

This is as handy a set of pipeholes as any newspaper reader could wish for. Clip from this newspaper any dispatch about the activities of any government in international affairs, and you will find that it may be placed neatly into one of these four porkeys. Also, it will help explain the motives behind the actions of statesmen the world over.

TAKE a few specific examples: Why does Russia like the lead in proposing disarmament? While she has the world's largest hard arm, she is relatively weak in naval power and in long-range heavy bombers, and she has no atomic bomb. To equalize her position as one of the Big Three powers, it is to her advantage that other nations disarm in the weapons she does not have.

Similarly, Russia is weak in the second category, the field of economic position. Terrifically short on customer goods and with a low standard of living because of the war and the late start she got as a modern world power, Russia must import machinery and finished goods from other countries and must demand high reparations from her defeated enemies.

In short, Russia is not yet ready to take her place as a leading commercial nation in peaceful trade. Perhaps this explains why she has not taken her place in the International Bank, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, the international aviation agreements, the International Trade Organization's preliminary conferences.

BUT what Russia lacks in force and economics, she makes up for in her use of symbols—her propaganda, her international information programs, her concerted effort to spread the doctrine of communism throughout the world, Russia's use of symbols—her use of propaganda—is more to be feared today than is the Red Army.

Knowing the power of propaganda, Russia guards closely her own mental security. Symbols from other countries she will not admit. It is against this background of international relations that Russia sits down at the peace conferences or in the councils of the United Nations. What result are long sessions of tough bargaining—the use of every trick of propaganda to offset the advantages which other powers have in economics or force.

annual Christmas luncheon and party. Lunch was served at one o'clock, after which Mrs. George Rockard presided at a short business meeting, when plans were made for the Christmas baskets which are given to many in the community each year and five dollars was voted to be given to the Salvation Army fund, after which Mrs. Tom Colbert led in a few games after which there was an exchange of gifts and the presentation of a banner towel set to Mrs. Hattie Sperry, their work planner. Group singing closed the meeting.

Weeping Water Woman's Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. P. Wolcott, with Mrs. T. H. Harder presiding. Dorothy Kunkel delinquent the members with her two little girls, "Bobbie" and "Dorothy Star". Mrs. Homer Jameson had charge of the program, with the subject being "Conservation of Youth Through Recreation". She was assisted by Mrs. John C. Pinner, Mrs. Joe Bender, Mrs. Henry Koster, and Mrs. J. L. Wiley, who read extracts from articles in recent magazines. Disarmament was particularly interesting and many interesting points were brought out by the members.

Mrs. Joe Weidert, of Havana City, arrived Wednesday for a few days visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Johnson on Air. Weidert expects to come Sunday for a week end visit at the Johnson home.

Lloyd Boston High school sophomore has been up before district settling his train. The result were some five milk cans which he had drunk, and some one broke into the building where they were being cared for, and took one of his best ones. It was a mean trick, for Lloyd has worked hard at his studies this winter.

Mrs. Edmond Marshall returned home Sunday, after spending Thanksgiving and the weekend at the home of her son, Frank Marshall.

Plenty of Wayne Feed

All kinds of remedies and delousers, wormers.

Chickens this year seem to be especially effected by mites and lice. Because of the high price of feed it is more necessary to keep chickens healthy.

We will make service trips on worming and delousing

We want poultry and eggs—will pay top prices.

Will pick up produce and deliver feed if in sufficient quantity.

Sister Elizabeth Kenny, former Australian nurse who won world-wide renown with system she evolved for treating polio victims, was given the Army and Navy Union's Medal of Merit for her part in the fight on the disease. Above, Comdr. William A. Klutt is pictured making the award as the veterans' organization celebrated its 60th anniversary in Washington, D. C.

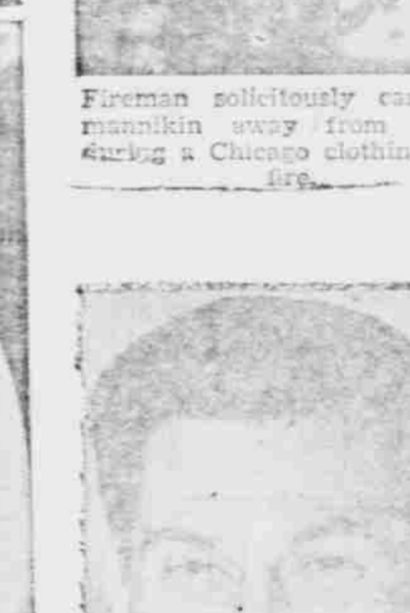

Fireman politely carries a mannikin away from dancer during a Chicago clothing store fire.

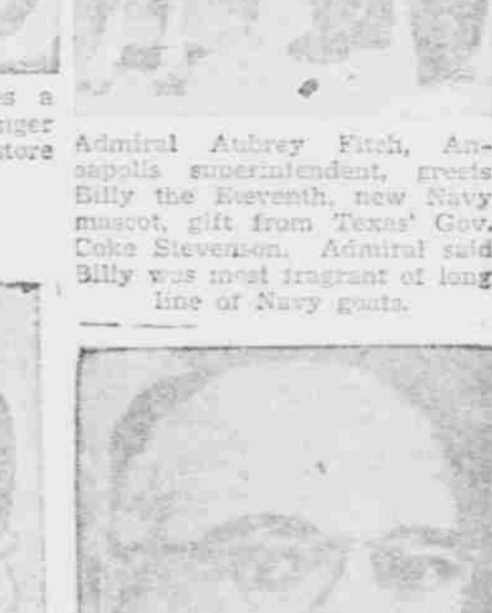

Admiral Aubrey Fitch, Annapolis superintendent, greets Billy the Seventh, new Navy mascot, gift from Texas Gov. Coke Stevenson. Admiral said Billy was most fragrant of long line of Navy mascots.

Vova Morezov is a Russian lad smart enough to overcome a flux's fear of humans and develop one into a pet. He's pictured with his fox, Aluk, during broadcast over Moscow radio, telling other children how he did it.

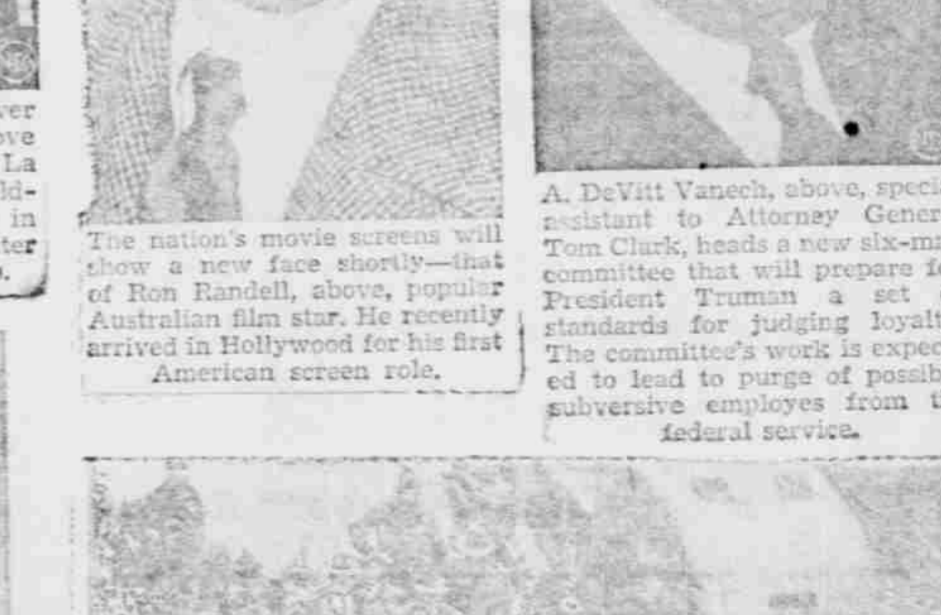

A. DeVitt Vanech, above, special assistant to Attorney General Tom Clark, heads a new six-man committee that will prepare for President Truman a set of standards for judging loyalty. The committee's work is expected to lead to purge of possibly subversive employees from the federal service.

Capt. Clifford A. Swanson has been named surgeon-general of the U. S. Navy, with the temporary rank of rear admiral. He has been serving as chief of the eye, ear, nose and throat division of the Navy Department dispensary and as surgeon at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center.

The weird mask pictured above was originally designed as a facial ice-pack so screen actresses could refresh their faces on hot studio sets without spoiling their make-up. But some smartie is reported to have discovered it's a good antidote for that "morning after" feeling. The pack was made by cutting up a shower cap, cementing on plastic cubes containing water, then putting it in refrigerator until cubes freeze.

There are almost 10 million dollars on that pinhead seen in center of photo above. Picture shows the fortune as, ringed by police with drawn pistols, it was moved into the new "drive-in" home of the Exchange National Bank of Chicago.
