THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD

Spell United Effort and Cooperation

To build the Seven Wonders of the World, much energy and united effort was required. It took the work of everyone. But their work has endured for many centuries and will last for many more. The magnificent Wonders were built for permanency.

You, too, can build for permanency: the permanency of Plattsmouth—your community.

Your home is here; Your children go to school here. Your automobile travels the roads in the community. . . And you use the many municipal buildings in the community.

No doubt these are taken for granted. They seem to be part of the permanent community. They are. But only so long as you continue to support the community.

Of course, you would answer that you take part in the activities of the community, give time to drives and campaigns. That is helping to build the morale of the community. But there is something else. It means building the physical characteristics of the community for permanency.

When you shop in the "big city," you are unwittingly detracting from a permanent community. For you are taking money out of town that if spent here would aid in building better schools, all-weather roads, better municipal buildings.

For a part of the money spent on each purchase you make in your own community goes to the community in taxes. These taxes support and promote better community facilities. When you shop in the "big city" those taxes are lost. And the community does not benefit.

If a single dollar spent in Plattsmouth ran through the regular channels of trade for five years, the gross profit would be more than $12,500,000. This in itself would provide all-weather roads on every road in the county. New schools could be built. Auditorium and recreation centers could be erected. And the bonded debt of all civic municipal organizations would be erased . . . still leaving additional money.

These facts can be proven. You can prove to yourself that the community can prosper. Shop Plattsmouth First and watch the community grow. Real estate values—your home—will rise. More schools will be built. Better recreation programs will be installed. The community will benefit.
