

Livestock Market

Cattle prices vaulted to new highs Monday on the Omaha market but slowed Tuesday. As much as 50 cents higher, fat steers hit $33.50, highest to date this year, and feeder steers, 1,365-pound Nebraska grassers, Monday scored an unprecedented

$26.50. Wyoming stock steers also cut a fancy figure, $24.10, and heifers reached $21.50. Stocker and feeder values were 50 cents and more up. Cows likewise were higher than last week at $10.50-$19.00. However, on Tuesday, slaughter steers, yearlings and heifers were barely steady to 50 cents lower, and cow trade turned uneven. The price spread on porkers continues to narrow, but generally swine values were 25-cents to $1.00 up Tuesday, butcher hogs up to $27.50, sows to $23.50. Fat lambs were steady Monday, and mostly steady to 50 cents lower Tuesday, native lambs to $23.50, Westerns to $24.00. Ewes sold to $8.50, feeder lambs to $22.00.

The Journal Trying To Do Things Fast

Things go at such a feverish pace around The Journal plant that it behooves us to try and inject some of our speed into other industries and projects of the community. The climax was reached in Monday's issue.

Things are done fast in Plattsmouth, but the Plattsmouth Realty Corporation is not going to build 29 new homes in a few days as was announced in this news story. It may take a little longer than that, but you can rest assured, 29 new homes are going to be gracing the lovely slopes in the new Hillcrest Addition, and soon.

Through error the article stated the homes would be constructed in a few days. The article should have stated a few months.
