The International Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 7

The Use and Abuse of Wealth

Scripture: Proverbs 11:24-27; 16:8; Ecclesiastes 5:10-11; James 5:1-6

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
 ON a smaller scale, and in a more primitive way, the Israelites of old were confronted with all the problems of character and conduct and their effect upon relationships in society, that vex and perplex the more highly organized nations of today. It is this that makes ancient wisdom still of so much value for modern life.
 Next to the problem of the abolition of war and the establishment of peace, and by no means unassociated with that deeper problem, are the problems of labor—keeping people working under fair conditions and with good living standards—and of wealth—keeping the power of great wealth under control in relation to the rights and interests of all.
 So many problems in these spheres remain unsolved that we are apt to fail to realize the great progress, both in relation to labor and in relation to wealth, that has been made within the memory of many now living. It is not so long since labor was regarded as a "commodity" to be bought, like any other commodity, in the cheapest market, under a competition for jobs that in times of unemployment was bitterly keen. Then came the recognition that labor was a human commodity, of blood, flesh, and spirit, with families housed in homes—or hovels—and the demand for a "living wage" became so insistent that by now reference to a standard of living is a stressed factor in wage negotiations and contracts.
 Similar progress has been made in enforcing recognition of the relationships and responsibilities of wealth. In the days when labor was a "commodity," wealth was largely immune from governmental control and from any sense of responsibility. The prevalent conception was that a man's wealth was his own, to do with as he pleased. Today we recognize not only that wealth has social obligations, but that society itself is a basic factor in the acquisition, protection, and maintenance of wealth.
 SOME years ago I wrote an editorial under the title, "Is Mr. Ford Too Rich?" Mr. Ford, of course, was taken as symbolic of the men who through invention, production, and distribution make a great contribution to society, and to whom society owes a great debt. But my point was that without the great organization called "society," which he could never have organized himself, the distribution would have been impossible. Actually "Mr. Ford" owed a great deal more to society than society owed to him. It is considerations of this sort that constitute the basis and justification for income taxes.
 From a Christian standpoint the obligations of wealth are more simple and direct. What a Christian has is not his own, but is held in stewardship, subject to the will of God. That is the ideal set forth in the New Testament, and the truer the Christian the more nearly will he attain it in the practical use of what he possesses.

Dated August 29th 1947.

 County Judge.

Housing Got Tighter
 CHICAGO (AP)—Thomas H. Wright, executive director of the mayor's commission on human relations, says Chicago's housing situation was worse at the end of 1946 than at the end of 1945. "It can be stated flatly that during 1946 we made no gains in conquering this problem or even alleviating it," Wright said. "The city actually lost more dwelling units through fire, simple decay and disintegration that it put up during the year."

Cop Loses Tickets
 WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Police men at headquarters here were kept busy "fixing" traffic tickets the other day—at the direction of their superiors. After a patrolman lost a book of tickets near a ball park, dozens of motorists returned to their parked cars to find them tabbed. To the irate or just puzzled drivers who appeared at headquarters, police explained it was all a mistake, the result of a prankster, and tore up the tickets.

CONCRETE GRIPS TIRES IN EMERGENCIES
 When you've got to stop—quick—you're thankful for the way concrete grips tires.
 But concrete's safety is not limited to emergencies. Concrete pavement, besides being uniformly skid resistant, is highly visible at night. Its even, flat-crowned surface carries you and your family with maximum safety and security night and day.

Safety is an extra dividend of enduring, economical concrete pavement
 No community planning new roads or streets need forego the safety of concrete. Moderate first cost, low maintenance and long life make concrete a true "low cost pavement."
