The International Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 5

The Better Revelation

Scripture: Hebrews 1:1-4; 2:1-3; 8:6-11

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

THIS lesson is the first of a three-month series based on the messages of the New Testament Epistles, other than those by Paul. In the King James, or "authorized" version of the Bible, the Epistle to the Hebrews is attributed to Paul, but from early days in the church there was much questioning regarding its authorship, and the American Standard Revised Version, and "The Bible: An American Translation," by Professors Smith and Goodspeed, along with Moffatt, Moulton, and other translations, follow the prevailing opinion of Biblical scholars in omitting Paul's name.

But one fact concerning the Pauline Epistles, the Epistles by James, Peter, and John, which Paul certainly did not write, and the Epistle to the Hebrews, is that they are all agreed in a common faith in Jesus as the Messiah, in His resurrection and living presence through the Holy Spirit, and in their conception of the Christian fellowship and the nature of the Christian life.

This could be demonstrated in many parallels of actual expression, though each Epistle may have its particular emphasis. James, for instance, emphasizes works as the evidence of faith, but in Paul's more extensive writings one would find many passages that, as strongly as James, stress the practical nature of the Christian life. So, also, though John is the apostle of brotherly love, all that he says only strengthens what Paul wrote of love in I Corinthians 13. And when Peter writes of believers as "partakers of the divine nature," it is precisely what Paul has written in Ephesians 3:19.

I stress this, because it is a matter about which there should be no misunderstanding, and about which, from my own study of the New Testament, I have strong convictions. This unity is emphasized in the conception of God's better revelation in Jesus, as presented by the writer of Hebrews, and as presented by Paul. Both are intense in their conviction that Jesus was the fulfillment of the Messianic hope, and both write from the background of Judaism; but Paul is chiefly concerned with doctrine, while the writer of the Hebrews emphasizes the priestly character of Jesus, and the fulfillment of the ritualistic side of the Old Testament heritage.

BELIEF in Jesus as the Messiah, and the fulfillment of Jewish hopes and prophecies, is dominant in the Christian church; and it is at this point that the devout Christian and the devout Jew differ, though they have the Old Testament in common. The devout Jew may regard Jesus as a great teacher, a view now more widely held than formerly, but he looks still for the coming of the Messiah and the fulfillment of the prophecies. It is a difference of belief that is not unimportant, but it should not in any sense be an occasion of intolerance or unbrotherliness. If the Jew lives up to all that is best in the Old Testament, and the Christian up to all that is best in the New, the spirit of both Testaments would make impossible the intolerance and prejudice that have led to so much suffering and tragedy. It is in ideals of peace and good will that Judaism and Christianity both find their highest expression.

The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory" (Psalms 97:5, 6). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "What is termed material sense can report only a mortal temporary sense of things, whereas spiritual sense can bear witness only to Truth" (p. 298).

WORLD-WIDE COMMUNION NEXT SUNDAY

Nearly all of the Evangelical Churches of the world unite in celebrating the Holy Communion on the first Sabbath of October. It is a distinct inspiration to know that this sacrament is being celebrated over the entire world by so many denominations for it is the most sacred feast celebrated by the churches of Christ.

The local churches invite you to remember our Saviour in His last command to "Do this in remembrance of Me", and attend divine service for that purpose. Owing to local interference the Evangelical and Reformed Church will hold their Communion on the Sabbath of October the nineteenth.

Beer Retailers Approve Self-Regulation

The great majority of beer retailers in Nebraska are themselves among the strongest champions of beer industry Self-Regulation.

They know their own reputation and business future may suffer if a few fail to recognize the responsibilities of a beer license. They endorse the work of the Nebraska Committee and the brewing industry:
1. Promoting among beer retailers a better understanding of clean and lawful practices.
2. Supporting legal authorities in elimination of undesirable elements from the beer industry.

The brewing industry, through the Nebraska Committee, has practiced Self-Regulation in the state for nearly ten years. It has the support of state and local governing bodies, the public generally, and all branches of the brewing industry.
