In an impressive ceremony last Saturday morning at nine o'clock in St. John's Catholic church Miss Arla Jane Kneer became the bride of Jack Sivinski of Arthur, Iowa. Miss Kneer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kneer of this city. Mr. Sivinski is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Sivinski of Arthur. The wedding lines were read by Msgr. George Agius, pastor of the church in a double ring ceremony.

Large baskets of Picardy gladioli and ferns formed the altar decorations.

Phyllis Troop sang three songs, "Ave Maria," "Pans Angelicus" and "To Thee, Holy Virgin." She was accompanied at the organ by Kathleen Feldhausen who also played the wedding marches.

The bride wore a gown of white taffeta with short sleeves. She had white lace gloves. Her fingertip illusion veil was fastened to a white headpiece with orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses. The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Marilyn Kneer was maid of honor and Miss Sharon Kneer was junior bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of shell pink taffeta and carried colonial bouquet of white roses, pink gladioli tied with blue ribbon. Their headpieces matched their bouquets.

Ushers were Edward Zach, Omaha, and Warren Kneer, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a black crepe dress with a corsage of red roses and white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue dress with a similar corsage.

A reception was given at 11:30 o'clock at the Hotel Plattsmouth for 50 friends and relatives of the young people.

Prospectors Trail 'Lost' Gold Mine Sealed in Blood

By LLOYD BULMUR

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. (U.P.)—The story of a lost gold mine in the Pitt River area near here is slowly unfolding, two separate parties are reported "hot on the trail."

The first attempt was made by helicopter when a city man chartered the aircraft. Although officials of the airline would not reveal the destination, hunters and fishermen in the Pitt area reported seeing the craft in their vicinity the day it was chartered.

The other attempt is being made by a Vancouver, B. C., sign painter who is reported to have a map of the area, but he says he will not be going out until next spring.

Story of Bloodshed
The story of the mine is one of bloodshed, and the social attitude of an Indian who died on the gallows refusing to tell where the gold could be found.

It started around the turn of the 20th century, when a lonely prospector found gold nuggets the size of walnuts near Pitt Lake. The prospector returned to New Westminster but failed to register his claim. He was found murdered a short time later.

An Indian, Jim Slummock, who had been a guide for the old prospector, was tried for the murder and sentenced to be hanged. The location of the mine went with him to the grave.

The story of the mine caused much speculation and in 1903, a veteran Alaskan prospector, John Jackson, searched for the lost gold. He brought back gold, but the ordeal of the trip was too much and he died without revealing the location of his find.

Letter Gives Clue
On his deathbed, he wrote to a man called Doctor Hall. A copy of that letter came into the sign painter's hands in 1922.

The sign painter says the mine is described as being less than 20 miles from the head of the Pitt River, where the river flows down a canyon and disappears. The canyon is guarded by three mountains standing sentinel over the hidden treasure.

The Vancouver man reports he found the three peaks this summer, but was unable to enter the canyon and river bed because of ice and snow.

Why Bank Tellers Steal Analyzed

CHICAGO, (U.P.)—The mild-mannered bank teller who embezzles the bank's funds probably wandered from an honest course because of gambling or "the other woman," a crime study shows.

The study of why "honest" people steal was made by Virgil W. Peterson, director of the Chicago Crime Commission. It was presented in the Northwestern University Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology.

It has been estimated, Peterson said, that annual losses from embezzlement total $400,000,000. A large share of that amount, he said, is stolen by trusted employees with excellent reputations for honesty.

Why do they steal? Compiling data from surety companies, Peterson found these to be the chief reasons:

1. Gambling.
2. Extravagant living standards.
3. Unusual family expenses.
4. Undesirable associates.
5. Inadequate income.

More than 20 of the largest surety companies cited gambling and extravagant living as the principal factors in embezzlement. Some companies reported that gambling was responsible for 30 per cent of their losses, while others blamed gambling for as much as 75 per cent.

Peterson said that every type of gambling, including horses, dice, roulette, slot machines and blackjack has been responsible for the dishonesty of trusted employees.

Some surety companies, however, attributed more of their losses to extravagant living. They pointed out that frequently it is the employee's wife who maintains extravagant standards and makes demands which the husband tries to meet by dishonesty.

Peterson said the most pathetic cases were those of employees who steal to meet some family expense, such as illness.

Red-Heads Dying Out Barbers Suspect

VANCOUVER, B. C. (U.P.)—Local barbers are wondering what's become of the red-head.

Not many years ago, say Vancouver's tonsorial artists, they clipped and trimmed one red-head a week. Now they think they're seeing double if they lay shears to one red-haired pate a month.

In particular, they're worried about the red-headed woman. They fear she's nearly extinct.

Some of the city's barbers claim modern diet is causing the red heads' decline. Whatever the cause, the men behind the shears are convinced the day of the red-head is about done.

Tests show that where corn was grown three years in succession on a nine per cent slope, 37,320 pounds of soil per acre was lost annually by erosion.
