

Junior Women Hold Membership Tea Monday

One hundred women attended the Junior Woman's club membership tea Monday night in the parlors of the Methodist church. The tea was sponsored by the officers of the club and the membership drive committee. A business meeting and a program preceded the serving.

Appearing on the program were Don Cotner in two saxophone solos, "An Apple Blossom Wedding" and "Rosolinda." He was accompanied by Mrs. Roy Cole.

Carol Lou Bernhardt gave a reading, "The Gooseberry Mandarin." John Jacobs, accompanied by Mrs. Roy Cole, sang "Blue Bird of Happiness" and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life."

Mrs. Anna Jane Urish sang two selections, "The Way You Look Tonight" and "When You Were Sweet Sixteen." She was accompanied by Mrs. David Fowler.

The tea table was decorated with a large centerpiece of bitersweet and with candles. On the tables were lighted candles and corsages of bitersweet and evergreen tied with bright ribbons. Refreshments were orange sherbert, cookies, nuts, mints and tea or coffee. Miss Alice Jayne Grosshans and Miss Joan Tiekotter poured.

The Gleaners circle of the Methodist church was in charge of the serving.

During the business session the group voted to offer their assistance to the Cass county chairman of the cancer drive and to help with a movie or a lecture.

Mrs. Donald Cotner was the general chairman and Miss Josephine Koubek was the program chairman. Others on the committee were Mrs. Richard Beverage, Miss Shirley Jacobs, Mrs. Newton Sullivan, Mrs. David Fowler, Miss Alice Jayne Grosshans, Mrs. Loyal Van Horn, Miss Josephine Warga and Miss Joan Tiekotter.

Ann Ryan, John Horn, John Toman, Joann Horn, Lucille Jeanne Horn, Merna Jean Petereit, Margaret Rose Toman, Sharon Van Ackeren, Marilyn Warga, Maybelle Warga and Ester Klein.

The adults included William B. Mayle, Robert Schneider, Otto Weber, Robert Long, Henry Keller, Mrs. Sterling Sand and Mr. George Earhart.

September Hot And Dry Most Of This Month

The monthly report on Nebraska weather, issued by the Weather Bureau, shows September warm and dry for most of the month, there being very little rainfall outside of the second week. Amounts of rain averaged near normal in the central and western divisions while the eastern division averaged less than two-thirds of normal.

The early part of September rivaled August of this year for intense heat and on the 3d exceeded the highest recorded in August this summer, with a number of stations in southeastern counties near the Kansas border recording 107 degrees to 111 degrees, and Fairbury and Hebron 112 degrees.

The monthly rainfall was less than an inch in most southern border counties and locally in the eastern and northwestern portions, the northern portion of the Panhandle receiving considerably less than the southern, and there was a marked deficiency in a number of southeastern localities. An area in the extreme northeast received 2 to 5 inches.

The hot dry weather hastened the maturity of corn, which at the end of the month was mostly past possible frost damage. The crop was spotted, some corn being useful only for silage and fodder, but in fair condition on the whole. The rains of the second week were highly beneficial for seeding wheat in most portions, though in the southeast barely more than half was seeded by the close of the month. The hay crop in the Sandhills was one of the best ever. Cattle were in generally fine condition. The third crop of alfalfa was poor on account of the hot dry weather and rain was insufficient for good growth of the fourth crop. Frost caused some damage in the Panhandle to potatoes, corn and late beans.
