Children's Book Week, which occurs this week, is nationally observed throughout the United States to stimulate the reading of good books, especially by children.

For his occasion the Public Library has many new books on display in the library and also in the windows of the Gas company office on Main street.

During the week school children in grades one to six inclusive will make trips to the library to become acquainted with the library and the librarians. For some it will be their first visit. It will be a splendid opportunity to learn about the resources which the library has to offer.

There are many books for children and adults. Many of these are fiction. Some are classified books, such as "Parade of the Animal Kingdom" which is a junior book but could be used by an older group as a study in natural history. We have many new biographies which are written in such a fascinating manner that they have become very popular with our readers.
