Mrs. Morgan came with her parents to Cass County, Nebraska, when very small. A few years later the Allen family moved to Davey, where they lived until 1899 when they again located in Eagle.

She was married to Reuben B. Morgan in Eagle July 6, 1890. They established their first home here and continued to live in and near here for twenty-one years. In 1911, they and their family moved to Viewfield, Saskatchewan, Canada, where they engaged in farming. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan returned to Eagle again in December, 1932. Mr. Morgan passed away March 10, 1941.

Mrs. Morgan was a member of the Eagle Methodist Church and of the Royal Neighbors of America. All during her busy life she was ever ready to help others. She found much pleasure working with her flowers, which she shared generously with her friends.

Expands Corn Insurance Program

The state office of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has announced that the corn crop insurance program for 1948 is under way with insurance being offered in Saunders and Richardson counties.

Richardson county has been added as a corn insurance county, being part of the national expansion in the experimental corn insurance program administered by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

The program is being handled locally by the County Agricultural Conservation Committees who have complete details on the program and are now accepting applications for insurance from growers in their respective counties.

1948 marks the fourth year of the experimental program in Saunders county, it being one of the original experimental counties.

Saunders county has two programs available, one on a yield basis with the coverage varying by areas from 12 to 22 bushels per acre, and the other an investment type with the coverage varying from $7 to $12 per acre.

Richardson county has one program with a coverage of $15 per acre being offered. Not all the corn land has been classified as acceptable for insurance in either county, since some of the land is subject to hazards not common to the most of the land in the county, and present knowledge of the extra cost of the hazards is not well enough known to allow an equitable premium rate to be set.

The contract covers the insured corn crop against all natural hazards encountered in growing the crop from the time of planting to December 10 of the crop year.

The protection afforded by the contract has been lowered from that of previous years to a figure generally somewhat less than the producers investment in the crop.

The program will be available until April 30, after which no more applications will be accepted.

In Saunders county in 1947, paid losses amounting to more than $30,000 to insured producers whose crops fell below the level guaranteed by the policy. L. Ralph Robertson, state director, said that because of improvements in the program and lowered cost of the insurance to the grower, participation was expected to increase materially over the previous years.

Coyotes-Wolves Menace to Farm Territory

The residents of the farming territory along the Missouri river in this vicinity are reporting increasing menace from the coyotes and wolves to the livestock and chickens on the farms.

One of the residents of the territory a few miles south of Plattsmouth, reports that he was working with a son in moving a hay stack, and at the same time had a plumber at the farm to look after some repairs on a windmill. Hearing shouts from the mill, the two men hastened to the scene. It was found that the chickens had just been turned out of their coops and as they started out into the farmyard, a pack of coyotes had appeared and started circling around the flock to a raid on the fowl. The men secured guns and routed the coyotes and stopped the raid but the coyotes remained to be a future menace to the livestock.

Other farmers report the loss of lambs to the animals and in some cases they have even attempted attacks on the larger sheep. One of the farmers who has been in the habit of raising sheep has discontinued this part of the farm activities owing to the loss of the lambs.

It seems ripe for a large and well organized coyote and wolf hunt in this locality to rid the county of the menace. The animals find a great deal of shelter along the bluffs on the Missouri river and surrounding territory from where they carry on their raids onto the farms. There are plenty of crack shots in this territory that would enjoy getting out and reducing the wolf population.
