Fat Cattle Up on Light Runs at Omaha Market

On sharply reduced supply, fat cattle sold 50 to 75c up, in instances $1.00 or more higher Monday and Tuesday on the Omaha market, steers to $29.00, heifers to $27.25. Steers with weight gained least and were hardest to sell. Hogs were mostly 50c-$1.00 lower and fat lambs 50c off, and there was incomplete clearance of lambs Monday and of hogs both days as outlets continued restricted because of the C.I.O. packinghouse workers' strike, now in its third week. Shippers were still advised to contact commission firms before coming with slaughter livestock. Despite the light cattle run, cow trade was ragged, scattered sales steady but others 50c or more off. What sales were made ranged from $10.00 to $22.00. Beef bulls sold to $23, vealers to $25.00. Stockers and feeders, comprising a third of Monday's 3,000 cattle run, sold briskly, feeders strong and stockers strong to 50c up. Yearling stock steers reached $27.75, a new all-time high, steer calves $27.50, feeder steers $26.00 and heifer calves $26.25. Butcher hog top skidded from $23.00 Monday to $22.50 next day, heavies to $16.50. Sows were steady at $15.00, $15.50. Fat lambs were stopped at $21.00, a half dollar under last week's close. Shearing lambs at $19.25 to $20.00 looked about steady. A few slaughter ewes sold to $12.00, 50 to 75c off the pace of late last week.

Among recent sales:
Glen Todd, 23 steers, wt. 1256, $27.00.
Harry Kasten, 25 heifers, wt. 745, $26.75.

wondering how much good the recent heavy snow did the sub-soil moisture of the state.

Down in Nemaha county, soil conservation district representatives got out to make checks on the depth of moisture penetration, at several points over the district.

A test made on Marshall silt loam soil with an eight percent slope in heavy wheat stubble and first year sweet clover ground showed moist soil to a depth of 43 inches. Between 43 inches and 78 inches the soil was dry. From 78 inches down sub-soil moisture was again found. Last fall's dry weather depleted sub-soil moisture to a depth of six and one-half feet. Moisture from winter rains and snow replenished sub-soil moisture to a depth of three feet seven inches.

In a second test on terraced winter wheat with almost no ground cover, sub-soil moisture was found to a depth of eight feet.

A test on Pawnee silty clay loam soil with a six percent slope showed sub-soil moisture to a depth of eight feet. This land was planted to winter wheat and had no ground cover. A similar test on sodbound, over-grazed brome grass showed sub-soil moisture as down to a depth of four feet.

Apparently, says County Agent Robert Wilson of Nemaha county, frost delayed moisture penetration on fields with heavy cover. The situation seemed ripe for a good flood when the snow banks started to melt, but the expected heavy runoff and flooding failed to materialize, since apparently most of the water went into the soil.

To increase minerals in dairy rations, add two pounds of a mixture of equal parts of iodized salt and steamed bone meal to each 100 pounds of feed.
