IT SEEMS BUT YESTERDAY

... that greasing the buggy was a regular job, like lubricating the auto. Pressure lubrication was unknown; the wheel was taken off, grease dipped from the can with a stick and spread on the axle. A squeaky wheel, not mite age, determined when to grease the buggy. Remember?

TRUTH OF PARADE!

YOU MUST HAVE A FUNNY LOOKING BACKBONE! DON'T BE TOO SURE!

THE BACKBONE OF A CAMEL DOES NOT CONFORM TO THE EXTERIOR LINES OF ITS BACK. HUMPS ARE COMPOSED MOSTLY OF FAT, WHICH ACTS AS A SORT OF STORE HOUSE, WHICH IS USED BY THE CAMEL IN CASE OF FAMINE.

And it's the truth that it's impossible to find a more pleasant and profitable market for your eggs, cream and poultry than Plattsmouth Creamery.

"A pit under the roosts covered with wire netting is the best idea — and it saves you cleaning the droppings boards too. If you don't have a pit, and you can't make one, at least tack wire netting under the roosts — anything to keep your birds from walking through the droppings, tracking this dirt onto CLEAN eggs and lowering their market value."

If you have any chickens to market, call us and we will pick them up at your place. We will pay highest market prices.
