EDITOR-FATHER FOLLOWS IN SON'S FOOTSTEPS

DADEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—In this case, the father followed in the son's footsteps.

When Ralph Bugg resigned as editor and general manager of the Dadeville Weekly Record to re-enter college, the publisher, J. C. Henderson, sought a new man for the job. The one he selected was Thomas S. Bugg, father of the departing editor.

No stranger to the job, the senior Bugg had owned and edited the Record for 20 years before selling it to Henderson early this year.

WRONG WIFE BURIED SO HUSBAND SUES

CHICAGO (AP)—Samuel Pierce, 46, sued the Metropolitan funeral parlors for $20,000 to compensate him for "great pain, anguish and embarrassment" suffered when he learned they had mixed up the burials of his wife and another woman.

In his suit, he said that when he attended funeral services for his wife, attendants told him a "horrible mistake" had been made. But 200 mourners heard the services for Mrs. Katie Pierce, 38, in spite of the absence of a body.

Later, he said, Mrs. Pierce's body was found in a grave, where it had been buried after having been confused with that of another woman.

How Fleet Heard Surrender News in 1945

Editor's Note: The following dispatch is by a United Press war correspondent who is now United Press manager for Japan.

By EARNEST HOBRECHT United Press Staff Correspondent TOKYO, Aug. 10 (AP)— It was just three years ago today. Three British naval officers and I stood on the bridge of the battleship King George V.

Along the horizon to the east of us were the outlines of American battleships. To the north were giant American aircraft carriers. To the west was Japan.

For several days the combined British and American fleet units under the command of Admiral William F. Halsey had been running up and down the coast of Japan. Planes for the carriers had swarmed over the Japanese islands. The big guns of the battleships had pounded the coast from close range.

The News Arrives

We on the bridge stood there looking. We always were looking—looking for kamikazes (suicide planes), looking for submarines, just looking.

Nobody said much. We were tired.

Then suddenly somebody shouted the news: "The radio says Japan has offered to surrender!"

That was all we knew. And we didn't know if it were true or not. But that was enough.

The weariness of months and months was suddenly lifted from those men who had seen so much of war.

Toasts Drunk

They laughed and joked. They waited for more information, but somehow they felt that it really was over.

Little by little we got the details of the Japanese offer. Japan was willing to surrender if the Allies would leave Emperor Hirohito on the throne.

It was difficult for us to sleep that night, for two reasons.

First, everybody was ordered to his battle station for fear that the Japanese surrender offer was some sort of a trick to make us drop our guard.

All-Night Wait

Second, everybody was wondering what was going to happen.

We waited all night.

Then came news that President Truman had replied to the Japanese offer. On behalf of all the Allies, he said the emperor would be permitted to remain on the throne for the time being, subject to the Commander for the Allied occupation forces.

President Truman also said that the emperor's future status had to be determined in a popular election "by the freely expressed will of the Japanese people."

The decision once more rested with the Japanese.

It took them until Aug. 14 to make up their minds. On Aug. 14, 1945, Japan surrendered unconditionally.

Dakota Women Rise in Arms For Their Rights

By GLENN MARTZ United Press Staff Correspondent BISMARCK, N. D. (AP)—North Dakota women admit it's their own fault that more members of their sex are not represented in state administrative offices.

They say they've hidden their light under a bushel too long.

Now they're doing something about it.

As a result the governor of North Dakota is going to learn things.

When Hettie Blythe, past president of the State Business and Professional Women's Clubs, can take time off from her classes at Valley City State Teachers College, she is going to present Gov. Fred Aandahl with a "Who's Who Among Women in North Dakota."

List Compiled

The list, composed of names submitted by the state's business and professional women, has been compiled. It contains the names of more than 50 of the state's most outstanding women deemed eligible to administrative posts in state government.

Several other women's clubs in the state, including the University Women and P.E.O. Sisters, have prepared similar lists for distribution among state department heads.

The idea developed when the governor was asked why he didn't appoint a woman to fill a vacancy on the state board of administration.

Aandahl was quoted as admitting that he "wasn't too familiar with the talents of North Dakota women."

Women Scout Talent

That's when women club leaders went into a huddle and decided to turn talent scouts.

Miss Helen Iorns of the state department of instruction, who is state chairman of the "Business and Professional Women's Policy Making Posts for Women Committee," immediately ordered a survey within the ranks of her organization.

"It was amazing to see how many illustrious names were submitted," she said. She added: "I only hope the men don't make fun of us. We are serious. We feel we have many women in the state who would do better in some administrative posts than men."

Nebraska Puts Land Back to Grass

Nebraska has returned 80,970 acres of land back to grass during the past year to conserve its soil.

The figure is based on a report compiled by R. I. Throckmorton, chairman of the Great Plains Agricultural Council's Committee on Conditions. Mr. Throckmorton is director of the Kansas Experiment Station at Manhattan.

The report presents figures on conditions of ranges and pastures in Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming. Nebraska ranks among the top two in returning land to grass. The other is North Dakota with 149,490 acres returned to grass by natural revegetation and artificial seeding.

Nebraska also low in the number of acres of grass broken up during the past year. The state broke up 52,965. Other low figures are Oklahoma 24,480, Wyoming, 52,480 and New Mexico 56,260. Largest number of acres broken up was Colorado.

Only in a few counties in Nebraska will the vegetation be inadequate to meet grazing needs, the report states. It does not name the counties.

Response of Reserve Officers Surges in Area

Interest on the part of reserve officers in volunteering for return to active duty has surged by 200 percent in the last ten days, Lieutenant General Walton H. Walker, Fifth Army commander announced today.

Number of applications received during the last ten days of July, he said, is more than double the number on hand during the first three weeks of the month.

General Walker attributed the increase largely to the widespread publicity given the program in the Fifth Army area, and to the concerted effort on the part of the civilian component organizations (Organized Reserves and Nat'l Guard) to orient all members with army requirements.

Earlier this month, General Walker cited the lack of response to the drive for 5,000 officers which the army announced it would need by the end of July to carry out its training mission, as imposed by enactment of Selective Service legislation. He estimated at that time that the Fifth Army Area, largest in the country, should be able to provide 1,000 volunteers.

While the number of applications received falls far short of requirements, results the past several days indicate recognition by reservists of the urgency of this program, General Walker said.

The Fifth Army area during the month of July received a total of 378 applications, he said. It approved 273 applications during the same period for forwarding to Washington. Approximately 294 applications from the Army Area were given final approval at department of the army level during the month of July. This total, he explained, included a backlog from previous months.

Cost of Vacation Joins Rush of Upward Prices

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)— You can't win when it comes to vacations this year.

Take a trip, even a short one—nothing fancy—and it will cost from 20 to 100 per cent more than it did in 1940.

Maybe just stay at home and roast wieners in the back yard? Nope. Wieners are nearly three times as expensive as in 1940 and wiener buns are up about 90 per cent.

That cruise from New York to Nassau, Havana and Miami is an example. A little pinching here and there, and the wanderer could scrape up $120 for the 12-day trip in 1940. Now the same cruise costs $218.50 minimum, an increase of 82 per cent.

Almost all the trips are the same way, with one-third or one-fourth of the increase due to transportation taxes. The rest is just plain old inflation in summer clothes, according to the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Company.

Accessories Soar

It not only takes more dough to get to the vacation grounds, but such things as sports clothes and fishing tackle and tennis rackets have zoomed skyward also.

The only major drop has been in the area of coverage of women's swim suits — but the price still increased from 40 to 60 per cent.

Golf clubs have about doubled in price, with 1940's $6 woods now retailing at $10 and irons jumping from $5 to $10 in the eight years. A steel casting rod that sold for $11 before the war is $17 today, with lower-priced rods in about the same proportion.

Luggage Expensive

Another place where inflation and taxes grip the traveler is a 100 per cent rise in the cost of luggage. Cameras have about doubled also, although camera film, along with auto tires, are two of the few items which have increased in price only through added taxes.

Gasoline is up about 40 per cent during the eight-year span, and the motorist has another thing to worry about when he gets out in the wide open spaces:

When he needs repairs on the car en route, he'll find that spare parts have gone up from 40 to 75 per cent and the mechanic that fixes the car gets 66 per cent more per hour for his labor.

The Antarctic winter this year has become so bleak that even the penguins have deserted the inhospitable ice-bound shores of Heard Island, more than 2,000 miles southwest of Perth, Australia.

Cotton is now used in more than 7,000 industrial applications compared with only a few hundred a decade ago.

Ordered Home

Harry F. Alber, above, one of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's key advisers in Tokyo, has been ordered suspended and returned to the United States for a loyalty check. Alber, a federal government employe for 14 years, says he has been thoroughly investigated twice in the past six years.

Compulsory Drill Brings Campus Stir

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—An old battle cry is being re-echoed by the University of Minnesota student newspaper, the Minnesota Daily.

"Down with compulsory drill!"

The Daily led an anti-ROTC fight during the pacifist movement of the 1930s and issued a triumphant "extra" edition on graduation day, 1934, when the board of regents abolished compulsory military training.

Since that time the university has had a reserve officers training unit, but participation in any part of the four-year course is elective.

But a recent suggestion by the university president, Dr. J. L. Morrill, that compulsory training be renewed has brought rumblings of the old battles.

Arguments Rejected

Morrill told the regents he believed lack of a program denied students the right to obtain commissions and failed to permit the school to do its duty to the country in case of war.

The student leaders of the anti-drill fight in 1934 are gone from the campus now, of course, but the new editors were quick to take up the old standard.

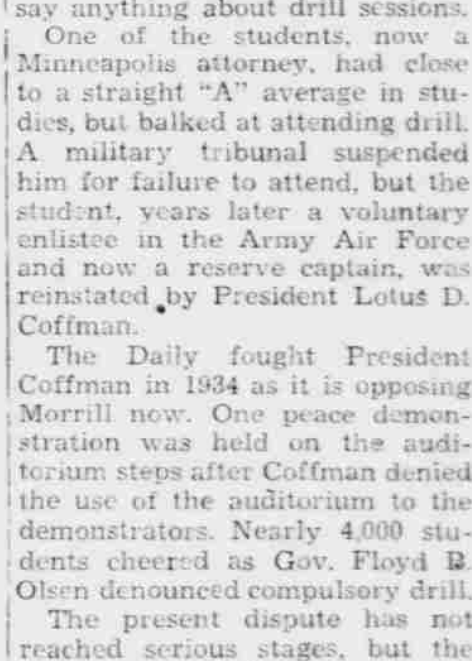

"The arguments 'don't stand up too well,'" the Daily said. "There is a voluntary program for anyone eligible to get into it. No one is being denied anything on that score."

The Daily added that official Army reports showed that the three-month officer candidate school produced officers "far superior" to those of college and university ROTC programs.
