Weeping Water

Mrs. Thomas Marley

Last Friday the Ames, Iowa, Incross Hybrid Poultry Co. five passenger plane landed at the Brown Airport, east of Weeping Water. The plane was piloted by Pat Mac Iver, and it brought Olav Smedal, a commercial photographer from the Ames company, to Weeping Water to take pictures of the Norris Hatchery, who sell the Ames Incross chicks, and of the Calvin Carsten flock of Ames Incross chickens. The Carsten flock is one of the best laying flocks in this locality. The Ames Company are going to use the pictures of the Carsten flock in their magazine in the near future.

The birth of a son to the Princess Elizabeth, of England, was a historical event of great importance, to all the people. But to one Weeping Water banker, the day was a memorable one, for it was also the birthday of Oscar C. Hinds, cashier of the First National Bank of Weeping Water. The suggestion has been made that he request that the young prince be named Prince Oscar.

There was a gathering of relatives in this vicinity, at the Hinds home, Sunday, honoring Mr. Hinds' birthday. They all came for dinner, and enjoyed an afternoon of visiting. From Lincoln, came Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hinds and son, Tommy, from Maryville, Mo., came Mr. and Mrs. James Elgaard and two children, Jane and Bobby; and from Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Hinds.
