Holy Rosary Altar Society Holds First Meeting

The members of the Altar society of the Holy Rosary church received a rare intellectual treat last Wednesday evening at the first meeting of the new year. Mrs. Gene Krings, Mrs. Cliff Girardot and Mrs. Richard Van Ackeren presented a very interesting and informative discussion following the general subject "The Parent-Educator."

Miss Josephine Warga was moderator of the discussion panel reading the prologue from the study club manual and presenting the speakers for each of the three topics assigned.

Mrs. Gene Krings, president of the Altar society, stressed the fact that the consequences of marriage and home life are both temporal and eternal.

"Life begins on earth to be continued in Heaven," the speaker said. Particular emphasis was given to the fact that the hierarchy of the church do not compose the church. All validly baptized people comprise the church and are members of Christ's mystical body. Even when one member of the church is defective, the entire church suffers.

"The child is not a mere creature of the state," Mrs. Cliff Girardot, the second speaker, asserted. "The parents hold from God the sacred right to train their children and in this free land they have the right to select for their children worthy institutions for their children's development. Children are prize possessions and it is the duty of parents to usher them into Christian womanhood and manhood unsoiled by the vanities of the world." Mrs. Girardot especially condemned "secularism" a system of thought and life where only the material values receive any consideration. She also remarked that supposedly Christian homes rate the material above the spiritual values in too many instances. The speaker remarked about the "trinity" in education—the blending influence of the church, the home and the school. Education deals with the total personality of man; soul and body, the intellect and the will. Mrs. Girardot ended with an appeal to parents to make their homes attractive to the children and to unselfishly extend themselves in the interest of the children.

Mrs. Richard Van Ackeren, the last speaker, began with a quotation from Father Daniel Lord, "Parents are the most influential professional people in the world." On this premise she argued that the home was the chief school for the children. "All the fundamentals of living are given at home. Habits are first formed by the child in imitation of the parent." On good authority, the speaker claimed that habit development is well established in the child before it reaches the age of five. In conclusion, Mrs. Van Ackeren emphasized the fact that the duties of parents do not end when the child arrives at school age.

At the conclusion of the meeting a religious home project was displayed which would be helpful in teaching religion to small children. It was a tableau of the "Coming of the Magi." Mrs. Charles Janda will have next month's project "The Christ Child."

The hostesses were Mrs. Dwayne Ahrens, chairman; Mrs. Frank Aschenbrenner and Mrs. Leo Brink.

Next month the discussion panel is composed by Mrs. Charles Janda, Mrs. Leo Hohman and Mrs. John Fleming. Mrs. Edward Gradoville will be moderator.
