DEAD AWAIT BURIAL . . . Snow somewhat softens the stark reality of hundreds of canvas-covered caskets lying on the ground as their tenants await burial in New York's Calvary cemetery while striking grave diggers attempt to bargain with trustees of St. Patrick's cathedral for 40 hours a week at present pay. A union representative said the walkout was caused by the trustee's refusal to bargain with the union in its demands. Similar demands have been made by 46 striking gravediggers at the Gate of Heaven cemetery near Valhalla, N. Y., where six Catholic Maryknoll brothers recently dug 12 graves in two days, against the protests of the United Cemetery Workers' Union (UCO).

from and about the first president. The president, Mrs. Chas. Marshall, took charge of the business session. Mrs. Herbert Oehlerting, the community chairman, and member of Cottage Homemakers club announced that Mrs. Raymond Eveland has received the honor of being chosen County Homemaker of the year. The first recognition program she will attend will be at Nebraska City on March 17, when county women chosen from five counties will be entertained there. Then in May County Homemakers chosen from Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska will be honored by the Chamber of Commerce in Omaha. Mrs. Raymond Pool and Mrs. Horton presented the lesson on "Insurance" in an interesting way, and much discussion made the meeting profitable. Appropriate refreshments were served by the two hostesses and Mrs. L. Hollenbeck. The next meeting is to be with Mrs. Nettie Mendenhall.
