But was it just interest shown that induced these men to choose exactly. Under provisions of the athletic department's grant-inaid scholarship program, worthy athletes are given their tuition No other monetary considerations are made. Athletes are permitted, however, to sell Cokes, apples, ice cream, etc., at all university athletic events if they need extra money. And this is where the grant-in-aid scholarship funds come from. The profits from these sales are split two ways. The seller takes a share and the rest is put into the scholarship fund to help other boys.
