Former Residents Pay Visit to City

Mr. and Mrs. George Halmes, former residents of the Plattsmouth community, now living at San Jose, California, have been here visiting with the relatives and old friends and enjoying looking over the locality where they formerly resided in their younger years.

Mr. Halmes is a son of Nicholas Halmes, one of the early day residents of near this city, and was brought up in this community, and while here enjoyed a visit with his nephew, William F. Halmes and Mrs. Halmes near this city. John Halmes had the pleasure of visiting her brothers, Tony Klamm of south of Plattsmouth, John Klamm of Union and Mansa Klamm of Avoca, as well as nieces in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Halmes left Cass county forty years ago and have since made their home on the west coast, where they recently celebrated their golden wedding at their home, 1254 E. William street in San Jose.

Civic Body Discusses Need Of Auditorium

slides of the Cass County Auditorium at Weeping Water and the Central school in this city.

The speaker pointed out the durability of concrete as a building material and of the fact that it was fireproof in building construction.

In reply to questions, Mr. Backlund stated that in his opinion the costs of concrete had not risen more than fifty per cent even in this period of high prices. He stated that in estimating the needs of size of the auditorium it would depend largely on the population of the city where it was located, the demands that might be made upon it as merely an auditorium or a more general community building used for several purposes.

Mr. Backlund suggested that an architect be secured, sketches made and tentative plans drawn that would place the matter in a practical way to the community in the event that a campaign was started to secure the building. The costs of a structure would range from $100,000 to $125,000 for the lower cost type and of course could be more as desired.

There was a general discussion among the groups present and it was noticeable that everyone was in favor of the securing of the auditorium for the community.

Searl S. Davis cited cases where the lack of a suitable building had kept the city from securing many large meetings that would have been of the greatest benefit to the community. He was in favor of an auditorium.

President Furse pointed out that the lack of a suitable building had lost to this city the opportunity just recently, to have a large cooking school brought here that would have attracted several thousand women of this section.

The matter was brought to a head on the motion of Searl S. Davis, that a committee of five be appointed to have plans and sketches prepared, a course of campaign outlined for the purpose of financing the cost of an auditorium by popular subscription or by a general bond issue to meet the cost.

The committee will be announced later.

In addition to the members of the Chamber of Commerce there were present: Al Nierste, of the V.F.W.; Leonard Brothers of the American Legion; Mrs. Sophia Wolever, V.F.W.
