OUR PARTING SHOT, SUH! . . . The Civil War is officially ended. The last of the three 105-pound projectiles uncovered still alive by mine detector crews is detonated at Fort Sumner at Charleston, S. C. The Confederate shells were fired into the fort in Charleston bay 88 years ago to set off the war between the states. The blasts, which sent up a tower of sand and smoke on the sandy beach outside the fort, were billed as "the last shots of the Civil War." The photograph was taken from atop one of the parapets of the old fort. The members of the detonating crew and the spectators are in the foreground.

school last Thursday evening by Miss Mary Todd and her pupils. Every pupil did their part well and gave the audience many laughs. After the program the members of the school board, Melvin Todd, Carl Cross and "Ike" Todd conducted the "Penalty Votes" part of the program.

Results were: Delbert Todd was voted the "most henpecked husband" and was given a miniature "ball and chain." Mrs. Robert Grunwald was voted to be "the best natured woman" and was presented with a comic book.

Don Martin is sponsoring the group at present. Mrs. Mitchell Rich led the devotional part of the meeting. After this Mr. McQuin and Mrs. Rich kept the group busy with Halloween games, in which everyone took part and enjoyed the fun to the fullest extent. Later in the evening lunch was served. Mrs. Todd assisted in this part of the program.

Melvin Todd had an oil burner placed in the furnace at his mother's home last week. Mrs. Todd is really happy about this, and is very willing to give that old faithful coal shovel a rest.

A very fine Halloween program was given at the Buck

AROUND THE CORNER

Yes, winter is just around the corner and that means a change in oil. Particular motorists prefer Phillips "66" Premium Motor Oil—the oil that both lubricates and protects the motor of your car. And for quick starts on these cold mornings rely on Phillips "66" Gasoline—blended according to the season. If you are particular, then it's Phillips "66" Motor Oil and Gasoline at

Bond Chairman Reveals Opinion Of Average Man

Mr. Walter H. Smith, Chairman of Cass County U. S. Savings Bonds Committee came up with a financial picture of the average Nebraskan today.

A Nebraskan, according to him, is a man, woman, or child who is more likely to belong to a family unit than not. Her carries a trifle less life insurance than his fellow citizens in some of the other states, but he is more likely to own an automobile and have a telephone in his house. He goes to fewer movies and other entertainments, but he holds up his end of the economy in his purchases in the retail stores.

Although he and all his fellow Nebraskans draw less than 1% of the national income, his per capita income is 104% of the national average. More important, he has saved up folding money. He is holding almost 2% of all the U. S. Savings Bonds outstanding and his time and demand deposits in Nebraska banks exceed the amount he holds in bonds.

"These statistics," Mr. Smith said, "describe people who are thrifty, but who buy what they want and need. They have a nest egg, but they're keeping right on adding to it."

State purchases of Savings Bonds, Mr. Leland R. Hall, State Director of the Nebraska Bond Division, announced, amounted to $6,014,768 in September. He predicted a rapid monthly rise in this amount.
