Obituary
Nathaniel Cloyd Newlin was born in Dallas County, Iowa, on January 6, 1880, and passed away at his home in Elmwood, November 7, after being in failing health for three years.

On July 4, 1903, he was united in marriage with Miss Clara Maud Moore. They had two children, the son, Cloyd, dying in early childhood.

The Newlins moved to Douglas, Nebraska, in 1913, and resided there until they came to Elmwood in September, 1941.

Mr. Newlin joined the Methodist church at an early age and his membership was transferred to Elmwood when they moved here. He was a member of the orders of Masons and Eastern Star. While his health was good, he was employed in clerking work as well as the work on his large acreage after moving here.

He is survived by his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Irvin Steeves, Panama, granddaughters, Mrs. Robert Harrop and Mrs. Walter Krogman, and one grandson, Cloyd Steeves; also one sister, Mrs. Alma Reynolds, and a brother, E. C. Newlin, both of Perry, Iowa.

Funeral services were held at the Elmwood Methodist church on Wednesday, November 9th, with arrangements in charge of the Hobson undertakers of Weeping Water. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. C. Lowson of Syracuse. He told of coming from England twenty-three years ago with Douglas as his first preaching charge. He especially appreciated the help and friendship of Mr. Newlin, who was a merchant there for more than twenty-five years. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casselman of Douglas. He sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul" to the tune "Refuge" and "In Heavenly Love Abiding," with Mrs. Casselman accompanist.

Floral offerings were beautiful. The members of the Eastern Star and Masons attended
