The One Day

America Gets the Bird

And what a bird. The traditional turkey comes into its own on Thanksgiving on your dining room table. So let's not talk today about early Christmas shopping, or bringing in your tractor early for that overhaul. Instead, let us give thanks that we in our land of plenty are able to send food to our neighbors over seas, not so fortunate as we.

"EASY DOES IT"
By HELENE HALE

CORN WILL LINGER in your memory if you serve it this way: cut ears into chunks about 1 1/2 inches long. Cook and serve with melted butter to which has been added a few chopped, stuffed olives. Dust the corn chunk with salt and pepper after dunking it in this butter sauce.

Another item which you'll want to serve often after you've tried it is scrambled eggs into which you have folded 1 3-ounce package of cream cheese, softened with some cream. Add this to the eggs as you start cooking.

Ever tried a baked blueberry shortcake? Make a rich biscuit dough and place in a casserole. Top it with a thick layer of sweetened fresh blueberries to which has been added just a dash of lemon juice and nutmeg. Bake for 1/2 hour in a fairly hot oven, until the berries are covered with a thick syrup. Serve with rich cream.

A real refresher for breakfast: combine melon balls (watermelon, cantaloupe and honeydew) and pour icy orange juice over them. Serve cold.

Make desserts easily for summer-time: Top a slice of angel food or sponge cake with a peach filled

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Barbecued Lamb

(Serves 6)

- 12 slices cold roast lamb
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1/4 cup currant jelly
- 1/4 teaspoon prepared mustard
- Salt to taste

Make a sauce by heating together butter, vinegar, jelly, mustard and salt. Add to it the sliced lamb and heat thoroughly.

Green salads will take on more zest when you add some chopped bacon to the dressing before tossing in the salad greens. Or, for variety, you might try some anchovy fillets or crumbled blue cheese.

Add some beaten egg yolks to a medium-thick white sauce, and fold in some mustard to taste. It makes a delicious dressing for green beans.

Cave Bulges With Food In Kansas

By SAMUEL J. SMITH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ATCHISON, Kan. (UP) — A great limestone cave near here into whose rooms various federal agencies have pumped foodstuffs for storage is almost bulging at the seams.

In the cave, from which limestone was quarried from 1881 until the War Food Administration began using it in 1944, are more than 66,000,000 pounds of food—dried eggs, prunes and raisins, Delbert C. Case, manager, said.

Case said the dried eggs in storage totaled 17,000,000 pounds. Some of the powdered eggs had been there for 15 months and still were keeping well. The Commodity Credit Corp. recently allotted $10,000 for air-drying equipment to be used here in egg storage research. Originally it was believed the dried egg would keep only a few months.

The equipment, installed in two rooms of the cave capable of handling about 18 carloads of powdered eggs, may help to provide a way to store this powder for as long as four years without deterioration, Case said.

The eggs are being purchased by the agriculture department in performance of its requirement under parity regulations to keep the price bolstered.

Case said the demand from foreign countries for dried eggs had fallen off. Dried eggs now are shipped from the natural cooler to repackaging plants for use in such government projects as the hot school lunch program and for use by institutions.

"The cooler has been taking in as many eggs as it has been shipping," Case said.

Dried eggs are stored in wooden barrels in amounts ranging from 150 to 200 pounds. The cooler now is in charge of the CCC and is operated by the production and marketing administration of the Department of Agriculture.

Case said the cooler was within 30 cars of its capacity with 66,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs in storage.
