

Arthur Foster Dies As Result Of Accident

Arthur Foster, 35, lifetime resident of the community southeast of Union, died Wednesday afternoon at St. Mary's hospital, Nebraska City, as the result of an accident sustained at the farm Monday afternoon when he lost his right arm when it was drawn into the power takeoff of a tractor.

He was operating a corn elevator from a power takeoff on the R. E. Foster farm, where he made his home. He had started to put on his jacket and had one arm in the jacket and the rest of the jacket hanging from his shoulder when he reached into the machinery to shut off the power. The jacket got caught in the gears and drew him into the machinery.

Working with him at the time of the accident was his brother, John Foster and Herb Easter, a neighbor, who drew him out of the machinery, but not before the arm was chewed off. First aid was applied and he was rushed to the St. Mary's hospital at Nebraska City.

The members of the club whose birthdays fall in the month of January were honored by the membership, they being William Baird, who has just celebrated his 90th anniversary; Fred I. Rea and Cyril Kocian. Mr. Baird gave a special number "Romin" in the Gloomin" assisted by Fred Rea and with Hil Westcott playing the accompaniment.

John Bissing, of Hays, Kansas, was a guest at the meeting. Supt. T. I. Frest presented Wayne Reike, Jr., the junior member of the school group who had not been able to be here at the meeting on January 3rd. Dick Fischer, the senior member of the school group was also present.

Herb Freeburg, was the program chairman and presented the speaker of the day, Col. L. W. Olmstead, in charge of the Army Engineers in the Omaha area, who talked on the conservation and water ways work in this part of the west.

Col. Olmstead pointed out that the engineers acted only on the requests of communities through the area as provided by the act of congress. He also told of the "operations snowbound" last winter when the engineers were called into action as a large part of Nebraska was isolated by the snow storms.

Col. Olmstead also had a very complete map of the Fort Randall dam and reservoir, the largest man made dam in this part of the United States, destined to be a great factor in flood control in the Missouri valley and to add to the movements for the conservation of the farm lands of the west. He also discussed the various projects for the conservation of the water.

The remarks were a revelation to the auditors of the great work that had been carried out in the west in recent years.

Cattle Thieves Rounded Up by State Officers

An interesting cattle theft ring was broken Sunday night with the arrest of Pony M. Burnaugh of Fairview, Kansas and Frederick Jones, of Sioux City, Iowa. Two other men known to be tied up with the ring are still at large. The arrest of the two men at Rock Port, Mo., Sunday night came from information gathered by Sheriff Solomon and sheriff's deputies from Omaha, who have been working on the case for some time. The men when arrested had nine head of stolen cattle on their truck.

Burnaugh and Jones have admitted fourteen thefts of livestock up to this date. It is believed they are implicated in many others.

Sheriff Solomon has been investigating Pony Burnaugh for the past month, after he had held three head of cattle in Cass county. No cattle thefts were reported in this area.

The theft took shape after the theft of eleven cattle from Omaha recently. Besides admitting the Omaha theft the pair also admitted the theft of cattle in Richardson county recently. The pair denied any knowledge of the 35 hogs and three head of cattle taken from across the Platte river in Sarpy county recently.

Missouri and Kansas state authorities have been in constant contact with the local sheriff's office on clearing up the case. Mr. Wendel F. Cowan, of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation was in Plattsmouth today (Thursday) going over the case with Sheriff Solomon.

Alamito Buys Local Creamery Company Plant

The Alamito Dairy, one of the large and long established business plants in Omaha, is to have a participating part in the life of Plattsmouth and Cass county communities in the future, the result of the purchase Wednesday evening of the plant and equipment of the Plattsmouth Creamery of this city.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Farmer's Co-Operative Creamery Company, owners of the plant, was held Wednesday night at the Mynard community hall at Mynard and at that time the bid of the Alamito company for the plant was accepted by the unanimous vote of the stockholders and the new owners will start in at once on the handling of the affairs.

From the office of Alamito at Omaha, comes the statement that they will continue the operation of the creamery as it is at present, and also are working on plans for the expansion of the plant, to provide for a larger expansion of the business in the future.

J. E. Mueller, manager, states that it is the intention of the Alamito company to establish a large depot here for handling their milk distribution in this area from Plattsmouth instead of Omaha, as at the present time, and this will be built up as time progresses.

The routes for the milk supply and butterfat handling will be enlarged by the new owners to cover more extensively this new territory for expansion. Al Fairfield, of this city, who has been employed at the Omama plant will now be transferred here.

The plant here will be operated as at the present time, all of the local personnel will be used in the operation of the plant, as it grows more will probably be added.

The company is expecting to continue the manufacture of the well known Casco butter, one of the best known brands in this part of the west and very popular with the consumers.

The new owners are pleased with their new plant and plan to make it much larger in every way, covering thoroughly the field in which the Plattsmouth Creamery has operated.

Mr. Walden, who has operated the plant in the past few years will, after assisting the new owners, devote his time to the operation of his feed business in this city.

Early Saturday Store Closing

The Plattsmouth Business Men's Ad club at their meeting on Wednesday noon at the Hotel Plattsmouth, took an advanced step forward in providing for a standard set of closing hours for the stores of the city.

The Ad club voted to have a general 9 o'clock closing hour for the stores of the city on Saturday nights, the grocery stores of the city arranging to stay open until 9:30 p. m. for the accommodation of those who purchase their groceries, and wish to leave them there until after the first show.

This change in the closing hours will make it much more pleasant for the owners of the stores, and the clerks in the various establishments, who can under the new hours, be able to return to their homes at night after a hard week of work, at a more favorable hour.

McDaniel Fund Tops $250 City Council Has Very Quiet Meet

Life will be a little brighter for the Lee McDaniel family, if life can ever be any brighter after tragedy strikes.

Following announcement of the sled coasting accident that took the life of little nine-year-old Beverly Jean McDaniel in The Journal, Plattsmouth and Cass county residents rallied to the cause, opened their hearts and their pocketbooks, and already the fund to aid this worthy family is in excess of $250.00.

In addition to money pouring into the fund, dozens of others have contributed food and other necessities. Neighbors of the McDaniels were first on the list with a near continuous stream of good folks bringing necessities and words of sympathy to the saddened parents.

It would be impossible for The Journal to name the dozens who contributed directly to the McDaniels without overlooking many. But, you can be assured that hundreds of residents of this community proved themselves traditional Americans.

Contributions to this fund will continue to be accepted until six o'clock Saturday evening, January 14. Funds can be mailed or brought to the Journal office. Monday the account will be closed and given to the Daniel family through the Plattsmouth State Bank.

Chamber Drive For Membership Is Underway

Membership teams of the Plattsmouth Chamber of Commerce got into motion Wednesday morning in the annual drive for 1950 dues. Headed by Joe Knoflicek, Orville Nielsen and Harold Alkire, every effort will be made to wind up the solicitation this week.

Most solicitors report they are meeting with an enthusiastic response from those contacted and indications are the membership will exceed last year by a considerable margin.

A membership in this civic organization with the proper credentials displayed in his place of business is a sign of pride, progressiveness and co-operation in the community. Lack of it reveals an attempt to ride the train to Utopia without feeding the flames that keep up steam.

Following recommendations by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, of which Plattsmouth is a member, several changes are anticipated in the formation of committees for 1950, all of which will mean a more active group, wider powers, and greater service to the community and membership.

Executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce is recommending to the body that the organization be broken down into three active sections, each responsibility to themselves, and each with an individual budget. These groups to be, namely: Civic, Agriculture and Retail.

In previous years the Chamber has operated with committee heads all reporting back to the executive committee. Under the
