any butterfly. We played exhilarating games, like naming Santa's reindeer and the mules in "Muletrain" and dropping clothespins into milk bottles. Cupid wanted to bob for applejack and pin the tail on Psyche, but kid stunts were out. They wouldn't let us throw darts at the master of ceremonies either.

PRIZES WERE PRESENTED to couples married the longest, married the most times and married legally; to men who married women and vice versa. One fellow got a prize for being named John. Qualifying for a prize was difficult, which heightened the excitement, for you never knew when you would win a prune masher for having letters in your initials. All plugs attached to prizes were by courtesy of local stores.
