

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

The Church in Rome.

Lesson for March 26: Romans 1: 7-12; Acts 28: 14-15, 30-31.

Memory Selection: Romans 1: 16.

PAUL STRIKINGLY addressed the Romans as those "called to be saints." Some think of saints as those canonized by the Roman church, some as the redeemed in heaven, and some as a superior order of Christians dwelling on a higher plane than the average. But Paul indicates that all are "called to be saints." And if men were called thus in Rome, men are called to be saints everywhere.

Paul had wanted to visit Rome, and he realized his dream but not as he had hoped. He came in chains as an accused man who had appealed unto Caesar. After a memorable voyage and shipwreck on the Mediterranean, he entered Rome, along the famous Appian Way, by which thousands had been led to be in the triumph of a conqueror. Some of the brethren met him at the Three Taverns and Paul "thanked God and took courage."

For two years he dwelt in his own hired house, chained to a Roman soldier, and was allowed to receive all who came unto him. During the two years he wrote several of his Epistles — Philippians, Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon.

From Jerusalem to Rome he had used every opportunity to speak to men of Christ and to lead them to the Christian way. Let us be ready at all times everywhere to do the good we can.

None of us can be a Paul, but we can be the men God has designed us to be.

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 26, 1950.
The Golden Text is: "Since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by ear, neither hath the eye seen O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him." (Isaiah 64:4.) Other Bible citations include: "And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God: For true and righteous are his judgments: . . . And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth." (Rev. 19:1, 2 to 1:6.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause. . . . The spiritual reality is the scientific fact in all things. The spiritual fact, repeated in the action of man and the whole universe, is harmonious and is the ideal of Truth. Spiritual facts are not inverted; the opposite discord, which bears no resemblance to spirituality, is not real." (Page 207).

Kite flying is fun—but like other sports, it requires good judgment.
FOLLOW THESE 5 RULES!
1 Fly your kite in an open field away from power lines or overhead wires.
2 Never use wire or metallic kite string.
3 Be sure your kite string is always dry.
4 Don't run across streets or highways when flying kites.
5 If your kite should catch in a power line, let go immediately. Don't Pull. Phone your electric office and your friendly electric man will help you get it down.
