New Restaurant In Weeping Water

WEeping WATER, (Special to the Journal)—The Wig-Wam Cafe, a new restaurant, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Meyer, opened Monday for business at Weeping Water. Formal opening was Saturday with free treats for the kiddies. Occupying the rental business building of S. J. Marshall, which has been entirely redecorated and remodeled for cafe service. Using the historical, as well as the Weeping Water athletic theme for decorations, the walls are colorful with Indian scenes and paintings, typical of earlier history when the Ojibwa and Missouri Indians roamed this territory. Booths have been installed and a "U" shaped counter-bar for those who want quick service. A complete fountain is not installed but customers may buy "cokes" and ice cream there.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer need no introduction to the townspeople. Mrs. Meyer having been employed previously at the Hamburger Inn, knows the restaurant ropes, so to speak, and we suspect that Mr. Meyer will be a willing (?) beginner and learn rapidly. Mrs. Walter Lühring has been assisting Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Fred Bauer. We also suspect that the Wig-Wam will become the "hideout" or the "lookout" for the Weeping Water Indians and their followers.
