Gov. Poynter was renominated by the fusion interests in 1900, but was defeated by Charles H. Dietrich.

Gov. Poynter always was interested in agricultural development. He was one of the organizers of the Boone County Agricultural Society and served for a number of years as a member of the state board of agriculture.

Following his defeat, he continued to make his home in Lincoln, where he took an active part in public affairs. He died suddenly, April 5, 1909, in the Governor's office, where he had politics during the 1890's. The Populists nominated him as their candidate for congress from the Third district in 1892, but he was defeated by Republican George D. McKeljohn.

Fusion among the Populists, Democrats and Silver Republicans resulted in Poynter's election to the governor's office in 1898. The contest was close, though and he defeated Monroe L. Hayward, the Republican candidate from Otoe county, by a margin of only about 2,700 votes.

Though they had elected their state ticket, the fusionists lost the legislature, and Governor Poynter had a hostile majority against him in both houses. As a result, he was able to get very little of his program, concerned primarily with railroad regulation, enacted. It was during Governor Poynter's administration that the present governor's mansion, located just south of the capitol, was purchased.

Michigan U. Fire Safety Patrol Warns of Travel On Vacations

"Don't wear out your welcome!"

This was the plea of Captain C. J. Sanders, Nebraska Safety Patrol, as the vacation season swung into high gear.

"When you are driving out-of-state," he added, "remember that you are a guest, and that driving unsafely away from home is as discourteous to your host as carrying your initials in his living room furniture."

Captain Sanders urged all vacationists to come home safely this summer and to leave the impression with other states that Nebraska drivers are the best in the country.

The patrol's traffic fatality report for May showed that eight of the 25 traffic fatalities were out-of-state motorists. Most of these eight fatalities were the result of one-car accidents, which led the patrol to believe that many tourists drive too fast on unfamiliar highways.

The patrol has started its yearly activity of stopping all out-of-state motorists, informing them of Nebraska's traffic rules, and asking them for their assistance in reducing accidents.

Captain Sanders commented, "Our tourist stop activity in the past has been highly successful. Tourists have appreciated the information and we have enjoyed their interest in reducing accidents. The fact that tourist traffic fatalities were reduced 66 per cent last year under the year before shows that it has been successful."

Sisters-in-Law Double Up
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (U.P.) — Mrs. T. E. Burns and her sister-in-law, Mrs. L. A. Montague, think it's a good idea to have children with the same birthdays. Two years in a row on the same day in May they went to the hospital together, shared the same room and the same doctor and became mothers.

Dry Reception
CHICAGO (U.P.) — Henry Kurth looked forward happily to the wedding of his daughter, Marilyn, 20, and began to save whiskey for the reception. A month before the wedding burglars broke into Kurth's home and took the whiskey, valued at $200. They also took $25 of his savings.

PROVIDENCE R. I. (U.P.) — Fifth graders at the Windmill Street school offered a bee hive complete with thousands of hard-working bees as an exhibit for the proposed children's zoo at Robert Williams Park.

"We think it would fit in nicely in the children's zoo," a student wrote. "There is really nothing to fear about bees."
